

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

CHAPTER 98, GENERAL ACTS 1916.

AN ACT TO ASCERTAIN AND CARRY OUT THE WILL OF THE PEOPLE
RELATIVE TO THE CALLING AND HOLDING OF A CONSTITU-TIONAL CONVENTION.

Be it enacted, et cetera, as follows:

SECTION 1. For the purpose of ascertaining the will of the people of the commonwealth with reference to the calling and holding of a constitutional convention, the secretary of the commonwealth shall cause to be placed on the official ballot to be used at the next annual state election the following question: — "Shall there be a convention to revise, alter or amend the constitution of the commonwealth?" The votes upon said question shall be received, sorted, counted, declared and transmitted to the secretary of the commonwealth, laid before the governor and council, and by them opened and examined, in accordance with the laws relating to votes for state officers so far as they are applicable. The governor shall, by public proclamation, on or before the first Wednesday in January next, make known the result by declaring the number of votes in the affirmative and the number in the negative; and if it shall appear that a majority of said votes is in the affirmative, it shall be deemed and taken to be the will of the people that a convention be called and held to revise, alter or amend the constitution, and in his proclamation the governor shall call upon the people to elect delegates to the convention, at a special election to be held in all the cities and towns of the commonwealth on the first Tuesday in May in the year nineteen hundred and seventeen.

SECTION 2. The number of delegates to be elected to the convention shall be three hundred and twenty, of whom sixteen shall be elected at large, sixty-four by the sixteen congressional districts, to wit, four by each district, and two hundred and forty by the legislative representative districts of the commonwealth, each district having the same number of delegates as it is then entitled to elect representatives to the general court.

SECTION 3. Nomination of candidates for the office of delegate to the constitutional convention shall be made by nomination papers without party or political designation which shall be signed in the aggregate by not less than twelve hundred voters for each candidate at large, by not less than five hundred voters for each candidate for delegate from a congressional district, and by not less than one hundred voters for each candidate for delegate from a legislative representative district. Said papers shall be filed on or before five o'clock in the afternoon on the first Tuesday in March in the year nineteen hundred and seventeen. No person shall be a candidate for delegate in more than one district, or both in a district and at large. If nomination papers for more than one nomination for delegate are filed in behalf of a candidate, and if, within seventy-two hours after five o'clock in the afternoon of the first Tuesday in March aforesaid, he withdraws all but one nomination, the remaining nomination shall be valid. No person shall be a candidate for delegate from a legislative representative district in which he does not reside.

SECTION 4. If in the commonwealth at large, or in any district, the number of persons nominated by nomination papers equals or exceeds three times the number to be elected delegates as provided by section two, a non-partisan primary shall be held in the commonwealth, or in such district, on the first Tuesday of April in the year nineteen hundred and seventeen. At such primary, twice the number of persons to be elected delegates shall be chosen from those nominated by nomination papers, and those so chosen shall be deemed nominated as candidates for delegate, and their names only shall appear on the ballot at said special election. The provisions of section five of this act shall, so far as is consistent herewith, apply to the primaries provided for by this section.

SECTION 5. At the special election to be held under the provisions of section one, every person then entitled to vote for state officers shall have the right to vote for sixteen delegates at large, for four delegates from his congressional district, and for the number of delegates from his representative district to which that district is entitled under the provisions of section two. The number of delegates of each class for which the voter has the right to vote shall appear on the official ballot. No party or political designation shall appear on said ballot.

SECTION 6. The persons elected delegates shall meet in convention in the state house, in Boston, on the first Wednesday in June in the year nineteen hundred and seventeen. They shall be the judges of the returns and election of their own members, and may adjourn from time to time; and one hundred and sixty-one of the persons elected shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. They shall be called to order by the governor, and shall proceed to organize themselves in convention, by choosing a president and such other officers and such committees as they may deem expedient, and by establishing rules of procedure; and when organized, they may take into consideration the propriety and expediency of revising the present constitution of the commonwealth, or making alterations or amendments thereof. Any such revision, alterations or amendments, when made and adopted by the said convention, shall be submitted to the people for their ratification and adoption, in such manner as the convention shall direct; and if ratified and adopted by the people in the manner directed by the convention, the constitution shall be deemed and taken to be revised, altered or amended accordingly; and if not so ratified and adopted the present constitution shall be and remain the constitution of the commonwealth.

SECTION 7. The convention shall be provided by the sergeant-at-arms, at the expense of the commonwealth, with suitable quarters and facilities for exercising its functions. It shall establish the compensation of its officers and members, which shall not exceed seven hundred and fifty dollars for each member of the convention as such. It shall, subject to the approval of the governor and council, provide for such other expenses of its session as it shall deem expedient, and may cause to be prepared and issued a statement briefly setting forth such arguments as the convention may see fit relative to any revision, alteration or amendment of the constitution adopted by it, or any part thereof. The members of the convention shall receive the mileage specified in section eight of chapter three of the Revised Laws, as amended by chapter six hundred and seventy-six of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eleven. The governor, with the advice and consent of the council, is authorized to draw his warrant on the treasury for any of the foregoing expenses.

SECTION 8. The secretary of the commonwealth is hereby directed to transmit forthwith printed copies of this act to the selectmen of each town and the mayor of each city within the commonwealth; and whenever the governor shall issue his proclamation, calling upon the people to elect delegates, the secretary shall also, immediately thereafter, transmit printed copies of said proclamation, attested by him, to the selectmen and mayors.

SECTION 9. All laws relating to nominations and nomination papers, and to primaries, elections and corrupt practices therein, shall, so far as is consistent herewith, apply to the nomination of candidates for delegate to the convention, and to the primaries and special election provided for by this act. [Approved April 3, 1916.]

Communication from Patrick
H. Jennings of Boston.

Mr. Moriarty of Boston presented a communication from Patrick H. Jennings of Boston, by his attorney, claiming election as a delegate at large and requesting that the Convention examine, count and tabulate all ballots cast for delegates at large.

The communication was read by the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and His Excellency stated that it would be placed on file for subsequent consideration.

Election of
Secretary of the Convention.

Mr. Underhill of Somerville then moved that the Convention proceed to the election of a Secretary, and that Mr. James W. Kimball of Swampscott be elected to that office by acclamation.

The motion was unanimously adopted, and His Excellency declared that Mr. Kimball had been duly elected Secretary of the Convention.

His Excellency appointed Mr. Underhill and Messrs. Bailey of Newbury and Creamer of Lynn a committee to notify Mr. Kimball of his election and to conduct him into the presence of the Convention.

Oaths of qualification were then administered by His Excellency, and were taken and subscribed by Mr. Kimball; and the Secretary entered upon the duties of his office.

Mr. Williams of Brookline moved that the Convention proceed to the election by ballot of a President of the Convention, and that the Chair appoint a committee to receive, sort and count the votes.

Mr. Quincy of Boston moved that the motion be amended by substituting therefor the following: —

Voted, That the Convention now proceed to the election of its permanent president in the following manner, viz: — Nominations and speeches in support of candidates nominated to be first in order, and when there are no more nominations or nominating speeches to be made the Convention to proceed to the choice of its permanent president by the calling of the roll of members of the Convention, each member who is present naming his choice for president when his name is called, and any candidate thus receiving a majority of all the votes cast to be declared elected President of the Convention.

Election of
President of the Convention.

Mr. Hart of Cambridge moved that the question on the amendment moved by Mr. Quincy be determined by a call of the roll. After debate this motion was adopted, by a vote of 192 to 74.

Accordingly the roll was called; and the motion of Mr. Quincy was adopted, by a vote of 290 yeas to 24 nays, as follows: —

Upon being presented to the Convention by His Excellency the President spoke as follows: —

GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION: I thank you for the confidence you have shown and for the high honor you have conferred upon me. To serve as your presiding officer is a great privilege that brings with it a correspondingly great duty. A full heart prompts me to say that it shall be my only purpose to so discharge that duty that your confidence may be fully justified. Without your hearty support I can not hope to succeed. May all the differences that have attended the organization of this Convention in the deep ocean of oblivion be buried, and may the President have your united, helpful co-operation.

Remarks by the President.

The people have entrusted to us a great work, and we are here, in the language of the statute, "to take into consideration the propriety and expediency of revising the present Constitution of the Commonwealth, or making alterations or amendments thereof."

When the act was accepted by the people last November, in accordance with which we are now met, a large portion of the world was in a state of war. Since then our country has become involved in the great struggle. Yesterday our young men were numbered and registered that they might be called into the military service of the nation. The greatest war in the history of the human race is being waged. Out of the confusion of its origin, and despite the proposals and ambitions of kings and men, it is each day becoming more clear that all humanity is divided into two great camps, and that by far the larger proportion fight shoulder to shoulder with us, not to change the boundaries of nations, not for conquest nor for spoils, but to down absolutism, to overthrow autocracy, and in its place to set up a genuine government of the people, to the end that "the world may be made safe for democracy." There is therefore a most interesting relationship between the world war and the work for which we are met.

The Constitution of Massachusetts was "the first written Constitution in which the people appear at once as author of the government and subject of its laws." Adopted in 1780, it became the model of all that have followed. When adopted, no nation had a written constitution. To-day there is hardly any without one, and in them all, whether it be the constitution of a state in North or South America, in Europe or in Asia, one will find incorporated some of the principles that were first clearly enunciated in the Constitution of Massachusetts, and oftentimes one finds a wording so similar as to show conclusively that the Constitution adopted by Massachusetts in 1780 has been one of the greatest factors in changing the form of the government of humanity to that of a representative, constitutional democracy, under which the liberties of men have been secure and their progress unparalleled. It is the Massachusetts idea of democracy, then, that is the center of the world storm to-day, and may God grant that that idea, triumphant throughout the world, may soon usher in an epoch of peace and liberty and good will for all the peoples of the earth. In these momentous times, then, let us approach our task with a view to help on the cause of democracy through constitutional government.

We have not been elected as representative of any political faction, and approach the work with our minds free from any partisan prejudice. Let us not unduly delay on matters of mere procedure. May it not be with us "as with men whom small things move," but let us deliberate and argue fully the great things, the fundamentals, to the end that when our work is finished we shall in no way have impaired or weakened the great principles from which our strength has been derived, but rather, so far as found necessary, shall have increased their breadth and scope so as to more fully adapt them to the conditions of the present age, and the future progress of the state.

We are here for Massachusetts, and may all we do contribute to her prosperity, her security, her advancement, her strength and her honor.

At the conclusion of the President's remarks His Excellency the Governor, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and other guests withdrew, under escort of the Sergeant-at-Arms of the General Court.

Mr. Luce of Waltham offered the following order, which was adopted: —

Committee on
Rules and Pro-

50. Any member may call for the division of a question which is in its nature divisible. A motion to strike out and insert shall be deemed indivisible; but a motion to strike out being lost, shall neither preclude amendment, nor a motion to strike out and insert.

51. No motion or proposition of a subject different from that under consideration shall be admitted under color of amendment.

52. In all elections a time shall be designated therefor at least one day previous thereto.

44. After a motion is stated by the President, it shall be in possession of the Convention, and shall be disposed of by its vote; but the mover may withdraw it, unless objection is made, at any time before a decision or amendment, except a motion to reconsider, which shall not be withdrawn after the time has elapsed within which it originally could be made.

45. When a question is under debate, no motion shall be entertained but to adjourn, to lay on the table, for the previous question, to postpone to a day certain, to commit, to amend, or to postpone indefinitely; which several motions shall have precedence in this order.

47. The previous question shall be put in the following form: "Shall the main question be now put?" Debate upon the main question shall be suspended until the previous question is decided. If the previous question is ordered, the member in charge of the measure shall have not exceeding ten minutes, and the vote shall be taken forthwith upon amendments reported by a committee, upon other pending amendments, and then upon the main question.

48. On the previous question debate shall be limited to ten minutes, and no member shall speak more than three minutes, nor more than once without leave; and all incidental questions of order, arising after a motion is made for the previous question, shall be decided without debate, except on appeal duly seconded, and on such appeal no member shall be allowed to speak more than once without leave.

Mr. Washburn of Middleborough moved that the amendment be amended by the substitution of the following order: —

Id.

Ordered, That the revision, alterations, or amendments made by this Convention, shall be proposed in distinct articles, each article to consist, as far as may be, of one independent proposition; and the whole to be so arranged that, upon the adoption or rejection of any one or more of them, the other parts of the Constitution may remain complete, and consistent with each other. And if any two or more propositions shall appear to be so connected together that the adoption of one and the rejection of another of them would produce a repugnance between different parts of the Constitution, or would introduce an alteration therein not intended to be proposed by this Convention, such two or more propositions shall be combined in one article. And each of the said articles shall be considered as a distinct provision, to be adopted in the whole, or rejected in the whole, as the people shall think proper.

Mr. Buttrick of Lancaster moved that the further consideration of the order be postponed until to-morrow; and this motion was negatived, by a vote of 126 to 132.

PROCEDURE.

35. All proposals to amend the Constitution shall embody a draft of the proposed amendment, and each proposal shall be filed by a member of the Convention with the Secretary before five o'clock P.M., June 25, 1917, and by him be submitted to the President, who shall read the proposals and, with the consent of the Convention, refer them to the appropriate committees, or to the Committee of the Whole.

JOURNAL OF THE CONVENTION,

36. No proposition shall be introduced or brought before the Convention unless it relates directly to its business. This rule shall not be suspended except by vote of four-fifths of the members present and voting.

37. If any member of the Convention shall so request, any order or resolution which shall be proposed for adoption shall be postponed until the next session without question.

38. Every proposal to amend the Constitution shall be read in Convention on three several days and be referred to and reported upon by the committee on Form and Phraseology before it is engrossed.

39. Proposals to amend the Constitution shall be read by their titles only, unless the full reading is requested.

40. Proposals to amend the Constitution shall be engrossed under the direction of the President.

41. After a proposal to amend the Constitution has been engrossed it shall not be amended. The question shall be on submitting the same to the people.

42. No matter which has been duly placed in the Orders of the Day shall be discharged therefrom, or considered out of the regular course, except by vote of four-fifths of the members present and voting.

43. The unfinished business in which the Convention was engaged at the time of the last adjournment shall have precedence in the Orders of the Day, after motions to reconsider.

44. On all questions the sense of the Convention shall be taken by yeas and nays, provided forty members so require. No member shall be allowed to vote who enters the Convention after the vote is declared. The names of the members shall be called in alphabetical order.

45. After a motion is stated by the President, it shall be in possession of the Convention, and shall be disposed of by its vote; but the mover may withdraw it, unless objection is made, at any time before a decision or amendment, except a motion to reconsider, which shall not be withdrawn after the time has elapsed within which it originally could be made.

46. When a question is under debate, no motion shall be entertained but to adjourn, to lay on the table, for the previous question, to close debate at a specified time, to postpone to a day certain, to commit or recommit, to amend, or to postpone indefinitely; which several motions shall have precedence in this order.

47. A motion to adjourn shall always be in order; and that motion, or a request for the yeas and nays, shall be decided without debate. After July 16, 1917, until all amendments to the Constitution have been finally adopted for submission by the Convention to the people, no motion to adjourn for more than seven days at a time shall be entertained. On motions to lay on the table, to take from the table, to close debate at a specified time, to postpone to a day certain, to commit or recommit, and for suspension of any rule, debate shall be limited to ten minutes, and no member shall speak more than three minutes.

48. The previous question shall be put in the following form: "Shall the main question be now put?" Debate upon the main question shall be suspended until the previous question is decided. If the previous question is ordered, the member in charge of the measure shall have not exceeding ten minutes, and the vote shall be taken forthwith upon amendments reported by a committee, upon other pending amendments, and then upon the main question.

49. On the previous question debate shall be limited to ten minutes, and no member shall speak more than three minutes, nor more than once without leave; and all incidental questions of order, arising after a motion is made for the previous question, shall be decided without debate, except on appeal, duly seconded, and on such appeal no member shall be allowed to speak more than once without leave.

50. All questions shall be put in the order in which they are moved, unless the subsequent motion be previous in its nature; except that in naming sums and fixing times the largest sum and the longest time shall be put first.

51. Any member may call for the division of a question which is in its nature divisible. A motion to strike out and insert shall be deemed indivisible; but a motion to strike out being lost, shall neither preclude amendment nor a motion to strike out and insert.

52. No motion or proposition of a subject different from that under consideration shall be admitted under color of amendment.

53. In all elections a time shall be designated therefor at least one day previous thereto, except in cases arising under Rule 6.

54. The provisions of Chapter 3 of the Revised Laws, and acts in amendment thereof, relating to legislative counsel and agents, shall apply to counsel and agents in all matters connected with the Convention. The Sergeant-at-Arms shall have charge of the enforcement of this rule, under the direction of the President.

QUORUM.

55. One hundred and sixty-one members present in the Convention Chamber shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, but a motion to go into Committee of the Whole may be entertained whenever one hundred members are present.

REPEAL.

56. No rule or standing order of the Convention shall be dispensed with, altered or repealed, except by vote of two-thirds of the members present; but this rule, and rules 20, 34, 37, 52 and 55, shall not be dispensed with except by unanimous consent.

Vacancy in the Fourth Suffolk District.

Mr. Dean of Fall River, for the committee on Elections, to whom was referred the order providing for giving James J. Mullen, Jr., of Boston, and Joseph M. Sullivan of Boston, seats in the Convention, each with one-half vote, reported certain findings based upon an examination and recount of the ballots cast in the Fourth Suffolk Representative District, and recommended the adoption of the following resolution: —

Fourth Suffolk
Representative
District, —
vacancy.

Resolved, That Joseph M. Sullivan of Boston be declared a duly elected member of the Constitutional Convention from the Fourth Suffolk Representative District.

The report (Doc. No. 133) was read; and the resolution was placed in the Orders of the Day for the next session.

Orders of the Day.

The Convention then proceeded to the consideration of the Orders of the Day.

The motion that the vote be reconsidered by which the Convention, on Thursday last, adopted the motion of Mr. Donovan of Lawrence, that the committee on Judicial Procedure be discharged from the further consideration of the Resolution that labor be held to be a personal and not a property right and that the issue of injunctions be limited in labor disputes (Doc. No. 30), and that the resolution be referred to the committee on Labor, — was considered; and after debate it was adopted.

Labor rights;
issue of injunctions.

Pending the recurring question Mr. Lowell of Newton moved that the motion of Mr. Donovan be amended by adding at the end thereof the words "and afterward to the committee on Judicial Procedure."

The President stated that the motion was not in order at the present time, but that a motion which would accomplish the same object could be made at a later stage in the proceedings on this matter.

Mr. Blackmur of Quincy moved that the motion of Mr. Donovan be amended by striking out, at the end thereof, the words "committee on Labor," and inserting in place thereof the words "committees on Labor and Judicial Procedure, sitting jointly."

After debate the question was put, and 125 members voted in the affirmative and 92 in the negative.

The sense of the Convention was then taken by yeas and nays, at the request of Mr. Donovan; and the roll having been called it appeared that 131 members had voted in the affirmative and 115 in the negative, as follows: —

Ordered, That the Justices are requested to state whether an inherent right exists and has always existed on the part of a bare majority of the citizens voting at any election duly called for the purpose to disregard all existing provisions for more than a majority vote in changing any portion of the Constitution, — in other words, have the people of The Commonwealth of Massachusetts any right under the existing Constitution to provide for such deliberations and safeguards as shall protect a minority of its citizens against hasty and tyrannous action by a temporary majority in amending the Constitution?

in Injunction

Cases."

Opinion of the Justices of the Supreme Judicial Court.

The following order, the consideration of which was postponed from the last session, was considered: —

Opinion of the Justices of the Supreme Judicial Court, —
amendment
of the Constitution.

Whereas, The War for the Union was fought by the Northern States upon the theory that the American Constitution was a permanent contract, unalterable except upon terms expressed in the contract itself; therefore be it

Ordered, That the Justices of the Supreme Judicial Court are requested to explain as promptly as possible to the Convention

why the Constitution of The Commonwealth of Massachusetts is not a similarly permanent contract, to be amended only upon the terms provided therein; and

Whereas, It is a recognized principle of legislation that the statute of latest date repeals all previous acts or parts of acts inconsistent therewith; therefore be it

Ordered, That the Justices are requested further to explain whether or not Amendment IX, providing for a two-thirds vote in two successive legislatures as a condition precedent to any amendment of our Constitution, forfeits or surrenders or repeals any previous method of amendment; and be it further

Ordered, That the Justices are requested to state whether an inherent right exists and has always existed on the part of a bare majority of the citizens voting at any election duly called for the purpose to disregard all existing provisions for more than a majority vote in changing any portion of the Constitution, — in other words, have the people of The Commonwealth of Massachusetts any right under the existing Constitution to provide for such deliberations and safeguards as shall protect a minority of its citizens against hasty and tyrannous action by a temporary majority in amending the Constitution?

After debate (Mr. Walker of Brookline being in the Chair) the order was rejected.

Orders of the Day.

The Convention then proceeded to the consideration of the Orders of the Day.

The following order was considered: —

Ordered, (1) That the work of the Massachusetts Constitutional Convention shall take the form of a main constitution and of a series of separate amendments, to be designated by the Convention.

Submission to the people of a constitution and amendments.

(2) That the main constitution shall be based upon the present Constitution and the amendments now in force, which shall be consolidated and arranged, as amended, in proper subdivisions under appropriate titles, omitting all articles, clauses and words not in force, and making no other changes in the provisions, and no substantive changes in the language thereof.

(3) That the main constitution, consolidated and arranged as aforesaid, and the separate amendments shall be submitted to a vote of the people in such form that the main constitution and each of the separate amendments shall be voted upon separately.

(4) That, in case the main constitution should not be adopted, those separate amendments that shall be adopted each for itself shall become amendments and parts of the present Constitution.

Mr. Horgan of Boston moved that the order be amended by the substitution of the following: —

Ordered, (1) That the work of the Massachusetts Constitutional Convention shall take the form of a main constitution.

(2) That the main constitution shall be based upon the present Constitution, the amendments thereof now in force as well as upon such amendments thereof as shall be submitted by this Convention to and approved by the people at the next general election, which shall be consolidated and arranged, as amended, in proper subdivisions under appropriate titles, omitting all articles, clauses and words not in force, and making no other changes in the provisions, and no substantive change in the language thereof.

(3) That the following question shall be submitted to the people at the same time that amendments shall be voted upon by them, namely: "Shall the Constitutional Convention of 1917 reconvene and proceed to consolidate and arrange the Constitution of Massachusetts as it may be amended by vote of the people into one whole and harmonious instrument without making any change in the intent thereof?"

(4) That, in case the people vote "No" upon said question, those separate amendments that may be adopted each for itself shall become amendments and parts of the present Constitution.

(5) That, in case the people vote "Yes" upon said question, the delegates to this Convention shall reconvene within ten days after the general election for the purpose of consolidating and arranging the Constitution and for such other purposes as to the Convention may seem meet and proper.

Reception of the Belgian Mission.

On motion of Mr. Powers of Newton, —

Ordered, That a committee of eleven members be appointed to wait upon His Excellency the Governor, and upon His Excellency Baron Moncheur and his distinguished colleagues of the Extraordinary Mission of the Belgian Nation, and inform them that the Massachusetts Constitutional Convention is now in session and requests the pleasure and the honor of their presence. The Belgian Mission.

The President appointed as the committee Messrs. Powers of Newton, Lowe of Fitchburg, Crosby of Arlington, Fitz-Randolph of Nantucket, Coleman of Boston, Bangs of Boston, Ferrey of Pittsfield, Stoneman of Boston, Wing of Dartmouth, Harrington of Fall River and Lowell of Newton; and they proceeded to the discharge of their duty under escort of the Sergeant-at-Arms.

Soon afterwards Mr. Powers, for the committee, reported that they had attended to the duty assigned them, and that His Excellency the Governor had accepted the invitation of the Convention for himself and his guests and for the Envoys and their guests, and that they would attend upon the Convention forthwith.

Thereupon His Excellency the Governor, His Honor the Lieutenant Governor, His Excellency Baron Moncheur and other members of the Belgian Mission, the Council and His Honor the Mayor of Boston, accompanied by various civil and military officers, entered the Convention Chamber under escort of the Sergeant-at-Arms.

His Excellency Samuel W. McCall, Governor of the Commonwealth, was then presented to the Convention, and spoke as follows: — Address of His Excellency the Governor.

MR. PRESIDENT, YOUR EXCELLENCY: — I have the honor to bring before you, Mr. President, for presentation to the Convention, the special envoys from the King of Belgium to the United States. At a time when thrones are crumbling and when anarchy and dictatorships are rising upon the ruins of once mighty nations, there is one throne in the world that is secure because its foundations are deeply laid in the hearts of the Belgian people.

Attacked by the greatest armed power in the world and dispossessed of his entire kingdom, excepting only a few square miles of territory, he has maintained upon that narrow domain a greatness of soul and a kingly determination which would do honor to the greatest of monarchs. And as the King, so the people. Inhabiting a strategic land, across which great nations fly at each other's throats and where the destinies of the world have been shaped and settled, so far as they may be settled, for more than once, this people extorted the praise of the greatest captain of ancient times and they have maintained their renown for valor down to this very day.

The gross injustice of which Belgium was made the victim has excited the compassion of the whole world. It has called into being a moral force more potent than the might of armies, a force that it is madness ever to invoke and that it is impossible in the long reaches of time successfully to resist.

The cause of Belgium has become the cause of all the free and independent nations, and it has profoundly excited the compassion and tenderness of the people of the United States from one coast to the other. It is an ancient political doctrine of our country that questions relating to the boundaries and to the systems of government of the nations upon this continent are American questions, to be settled by the self-governing peoples of this hemisphere without any influence or control from the nations beyond the seas. A due regard for that doctrine imposes upon us a scrupulous respect for the corresponding right of the nations of Europe to adjust their own frontiers and to exercise that basic and inherent right of all nations to adopt their own form of government. It is for the nations of Europe, for instance, to determine whether those recently lost provinces of France which were hers for generations shall be restored to her again, and whether there shall now be driven forever from the European shores of the Bosphorus that unspeakable power whose dragon form fouls the splendor of the sun. These questions are for the European nations to settle. But whatever may have been our separate and legitimate cause for entering upon this war, and whatever part we may play in adjusting the terms of the treaty of peace — which we may hope will come before the plains of Europe become the grave of the white races and the grave also of their civilization — yet this war would have a lamentable and a tragic outcome for us if it did not result in the complete restoration of the Belgian kingdom. And if the invader shall have been made too impoverished to repair the destruction wrought by his own vandalism, I believe that the people of America will be proud to do their share in rebuilding a newer and a greater Belgium.

Mr. President, it is a profoundly interesting event for this Constitutional Convention to receive the representatives of a great King and of an heroic people. There is no spot upon the globe where they will receive a warmer welcome than upon the soil of Massachusetts, and it is fitting that the chosen representatives of the people of the Commonwealth should extend their welcome to the Belgian Envoys.

President John L. Bates then spoke as follows: —

YOUR EXCELLENCY, YOUR HONOR: — On behalf of the Convention I thank you both for bringing here the distinguished guests of the state and of the city. It has been a great pleasure, sirs, for us to have the opportunity of gazing upon them, remembering the nation that they represent and all for which it stands at this hour.

Address of President
Bates.

Your Excellency, it gives me great pleasure on behalf of these representatives of Massachusetts to join in the welcome that His Excellency the Governor has extended to you. It is a welcome that is a warm welcome because it comes from the very depths of the human heart. You find us here seemingly in peaceful deliberation over the principles which we regard as fundamentally necessary to maintain and perpetuate the rights and the liberties of men. But, Sir, it has always been true that Massachusetts has been ready to unsheathe the sword for the vindication of those principles in which she believes. And while we here are in peaceful deliberation over the great principles for which your people have been so gallantly fighting, our boys, too, are girding on the sword and buckling on the armor to the end that they may take their part in this greatest of all causes that the world has ever known.

We welcome you, Sir, as friends. We welcome you as allies. We welcome you because you have the same enemy that we have. We have read the distressing story of how that enemy without warning, without provocation and without excuse, has desolated your fair land and seeks now to divide its green fields and its blue coasts as spoils of war. With you, Sir, we shall seek to circumvent the designs of that enemy. That enemy seeks to establish the idea that the individual exists only for the welfare of the government. We seek to establish throughout the world the idea that governments have no excuse for existence except as they exist for the welfare of the individual.

Our common enemy maintains that might makes right, but we have an unfaltering faith that in the end it will appear that right has made might. We recognize that today wrong may be upon the throne and that truth may be upon the scaffold, but there comes another tomorrow and in that tomorrow wrong shall be abased and truth shall be exalted. Your enemy shall stand as a trembling culprit before the bar of nations, but Belgium shall receive a crown of exceeding glory because it had the courage and that high ideal of faith that enabled it to discharge its duty to mankind by opposing its living wall of flesh and its rivers of blood to the onward progress of the vandals that sought the destruction of Christian civilization. We believe, Sir, that even as the story has been told for twenty centuries and more of how the brave Spartans kept the pass at Thermopylæ against the hordes that sought to destroy the civilization of that day, so for twenty centuries and more yet to come it shall be told among men and the praises of the Belgians shall be sung because they too have kept the pass and saved the civilization of the present day.

On behalf, then, Sir, of this Convention of Massachusetts, take back this message to your noble King. Tell him that Massachusetts, that owes allegiance to no man but to principle ever, holds him in the highest regard and esteem because in the hour of the great crisis he has shown an unquenchable spirit, and a self-sacrifice and devotion in the service of his stricken people that marks him, indeed, a king among men. And take back to your struggling people this message also from Massachusetts. Massachusetts, that is never so happy as when she is seeking to right the wrongs of mankind, is happy today because she is engaged in the great conflict shoulder to shoulder with Belgium and with France, with England and Italy and Russia, and we are all facing one way. It has come to pass that our young men are already three thousand miles on the way to Berlin, and we do not propose that they shall stop until it shall appear that the despotism that threatens humanity has been overthrown, that the faith of nations has been justified, that Belgium has been restored to her "place in the sun," and that the great principles for which she has fought and suffered so much have become the controlling principles of all the nations of the earth.

Gentlemen of the Convention, it gives me a rare pleasure to present to you the head of the Belgian Envoys, His Excellency Baron Moncheur.

Address of His Excellency
Baron
Moncheur.

Response was made by His Excellency Baron Moncheur, as follows: —

MR. PRESIDENT, YOUR EXCELLENCY, YOUR HONOR, GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION: — On behalf of my colleagues and myself I thank you not only for your cordial reception and for your hearty words of welcome, but also for the sympathetic thought which has inspired you to invite us to celebrate within your hospitable gates the third anniversary of the commencement of the war.

May there never be again such an anniversary, and may there never be again such a war. Indeed we feel confident that victory is now in sight and that the world shall again enjoy a long reign of peace. For America has bared her mighty arm and she will not again sheathe the sword until right and justice are vindicated and the world made safe for all honest nations.

We have a right to celebrate this third anniversary with rejoicing, for the third year of the war is America's year — the year in which your great republic has thrown her mighty sword into the scales — the year which makes certain the triumph of liberty and of final overthrow of military autocracy. That is an end worth waiting for, worth fighting for, worth all the sacrifices that have been made and that are still to be made. For life is not so dear, nor peace so sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and liberty.

It is a great privilege to be able to celebrate this anniversary within the borders of your Commonwealth, which is so identified with the cause of human freedom, and almost within the shadow of Faneuil Hall, which your great fellow citizen, Webster, has called "The Cradle of American Liberty"!

We have come to America at our King's behest to express to the government of the United States and through it to all the people of your great and noble nation the gratitude of our sovereign and of every Belgian for all that you have done in the past and for all that you are now doing to alleviate the sufferings of our people, and for all that you are about to do to aid us win back our independence. We count ourselves fortunate to be able to come in person to Boston and to have the opportunity of thanking you with our own lips for your generosity and for your sympathy and help. And it is a special privilege to have the honor of expressing these sentiments to this distinguished Convention.

Three years ago today, August the third, 1914, my country was free. On the second of August, in the evening, my government had received a most insulting ultimatum from Germany, demanding unimpeded passage for her troops and offering a bribe to sell our honor and to disregard our plighted word. We were given twelve hours within which to reply. The time was more than enough. Yes, there could be only one answer. The King summoned his cabinet and his ministers of state. They were all of one mind. In fact, there was absolute unanimity of thought in every Belgian mind, and there was not a dissenting voice in the council of the King. Belgium's reply was sent to the German legation by seven o'clock in the morning of August the third. You all know the substance of that reply. One sentence of the document reads: "The Belgian government, if they were to accept the proposals submitted to them, would sacrifice the honor of the nation and betray their duties toward Europe." Neither Belgium's liberty nor her honor were for sale.

This day three years ago was an anxious day in Belgium. We asked the diplomatic support of the powers who had guaranteed our neutrality, but we asked their diplomatic support only. A request for military support was, after careful consideration, deliberately deferred until Germany should have consummated her crime by sending troops into our territory. We were careful to give her no pretext whatever for claiming that we had violated our neutral obligations in favor of her enemies until she had actually consummated her threatened crime.

The third of August was therefore a day of anxious waiting; but at half-past nine on the morning of the fourth we received a telegram that Belgian territory had been violated by German troops at Gemmenich, a little village close to the frontier and a few miles from Aix-la-Chapelle. The invading forces had been met by Belgian gendarmes on guard at this frontier post. Blood had flowed; the die was cast.

You all know what has happened since that fateful day three years ago. My country has been ravaged with fire and sword. Old men, women and children have been deliberately and ruthlessly massacred. Our raw materials and our crops have been seized without payment, our factories have been destroyed, our machinery has been stolen and sent into Germany; and, crowning infamy of the centuries, our workmen have been torn from their homes and sent into slavery. The Belgian people still stand caged behind steel bars, formed of German bayonets. Those who have escaped fire and sword and nameless evils are still hungry, famished and enslaved, ground down beneath the heel of the tyrant. But their courage remains unbroken and unbreakable.

No true-hearted Belgian regrets the decision which was made three years ago. They are ready to lay down their lives for liberty. They know that in the end justice will triumph. As our King said three years ago, "A country which defends itself commands the respect of all the world and cannot perish!"

Through all our trials and sufferings the American nation has been our constant and unfailing friend. You have clothed the naked and fed the hungry. Above all, you have given us your sympathy and your support. And now you are doing still more. You are sending us the flower of your youth to fight shoulder to shoulder with our troops in the great battle for the freedom of the world. You have been our friends. Now you are more than our friends — you are our allies and our brothers in arms. Your people are animated by the spirit of the men who fought at Lexington, Concord and Bunker Hill. You are not fighting for aggrandizement nor for gain; you are fighting for our liberty, for your own liberty, and for the liberty of the world. It must be a fight to the finish, and the finish must be right. Military autocracy must be crushed down — crushed that it will never again be able to disturb the peace of the world. May that day soon come when we shall together acclaim the triumph of our common cause.

His Excellency, His Honor, Baron Moncheur, the Mayor and other guests then withdrew. The President announced that opportunity would immediately be given the members to greet in person the distinguished guests in Memorial Hall.

On motion of Mr. Powers of Newton the addresses of the Governor, the President and Baron Moncheur were ordered printed as a part of the records of the Convention.

Subsequently the Secretary received a communication from His Excellency Baron Moncheur, "deeply appreciating the sympathetic sentiments displayed by the Constitutional Convention in voting to include my remarks in the records of the Convention."

At twenty-seven minutes after eleven o'clock, on motion of Mr. Underhill of Somerville, the Convention adjourned, to meet on Tuesday next at half-past ten o'clock A.M.

JOURNAL OF THE CONVENTION.

TUESDAY, August 21, 1917.

Met according to adjournment, at one o'clock P.M.

Prayer was offered by Rev. John L. Kilbon of Springfield, a member of the Convention.

Reception of the Russian Mission.

On motion of Mr. Hall of Taunton, —

Ordered, That a committee of eleven members be appointed to wait upon His Excellency the Governor, and upon the Honorable Boris A. Bakhmetieff and his distinguished colleagues of the Russian Mission, and inform them that the Massachusetts Constitutional Convention is now in session and requests the pleasure and the honor of their presence. The Russian Mission.

The President appointed as the committee Messrs. Hall of Taunton, Thompson of Haverhill, Turner of Fall River, Bailey of Somerville, Tilton of Springfield, Bauer of Lynn, Brown of Brockton, Burns of Pittsfield, Montague of Boston, Swig of Taunton and Donoghue of Boston, and they proceeded to the discharge of their duty under escort of the Sergeant-at-Arms.

Soon afterwards Mr. Hall, for the committee, reported that they had attended to the duty assigned them, and that His Excellency the Governor had accepted the invitation of the Convention for himself and his guests and for the visitors and their guests, and that they would attend upon the Convention forthwith.

Thereupon His Excellency the Governor, His Honor the Lieutenant Governor, the Honorable Boris A. Bakhmetieff, Russian Ambassador, and other members of the Russian Mission, and His Honor the Mayor of Boston, accompanied by various civil and military officers, entered the Convention Chamber under escort of the Sergeant-at-Arms.

His Excellency Samuel W. McCall, Governor of the Commonwealth, was then presented to the Convention, and spoke as follows: —

MR. PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION: — We are honored to-day by the presence of the special mission from the Republic of Russia to the United States. This honor is grateful to us for many reasons. In the first place, we find ourselves side by side with Russia in a war as wicked as it is colossal, which has involved almost every nation on the globe. In that war perhaps Russia has suffered more than any other nation, but she stands to-day unconquered, and I believe unconquerable. There is no nation in the world that has been more steadily the friend of the United States than has the Russian nation. It is now settled history that when in the darkest days of our Civil War the government of Lord John Russell set in motion a project Address of His Excellency the Governor.

to have the Emperor of the French propose to Great Britain and Russia to intervene between the North and the South, it was the firm friendship of Russia in that crisis that put to death that most infamous proposal. Again, in recognition of our primacy upon this continent, in friendship to the Monroe Doctrine and in friendship to us, she conveyed to us for hardly more than a nominal consideration the vast reaches of her territory along Bering Strait and the North Pacific, and it was from her that we received Alaska, with the untold resources of that rich, even if frozen, empire. So that our comradeship to-day with Russia is based upon a century of firm friendship.

It does little credit to the justice of the nations which have long directed the diplomacy of the world that a nation having nearly one-sixth of the land area of the globe, and nearly one-tenth of its population, should be denied free access to warm water, and that its commerce should have laid upon it that embargo which is imposed upon ports which are frozen during the greater part of the year. Encompassed as we are upon every side by thousands of miles of free and open sea, we should do our utmost to remedy this injustice and to give that great people free access to the ocean.

And then this honor which we have to-day is grateful to us for another reason. Russia has ranged herself side by side with the United States in the sisterhood of republics. Systems of government cannot be settled offhand, I know, by grandiloquent declamations about liberty and democracy. Systems of government, where they have been oppressive systems that have long been in force over a people, become so interwoven with the thoughts and habits of the people that they cannot at once step into the full sunlight; and, just as a man who has been a long time kept in prison becomes attached to his dungeon and cannot endure the light of day, so nations long held in the house of bondage must make their way towards freedom by slow and painful struggles, by suffering and by many tears. But Russia, by her willingness to rebel against oppression — and it is to her credit that she has been willing to throw off the yoke — has shown her fitness to be free, and I believe that any little reaction that may come will be but the natural marking of her steady progress toward a free and orderly government.

And so, gentlemen, to-day let us send the greetings of perhaps the oldest Commonwealth in the world to the youngest. Let us ask these envoys to take back to Russia the hope of Massachusetts that that great republic that stretches over so much of Asia and Europe may be as enduring and as free as it is powerful and great. They come here to-day and find you in the interesting process of revising our ancient Constitution, not by the bayonet and the sword, but by that peaceful deliberation which should hold sway over the government of states and over the government of the world. Perhaps they may derive something from our process that will be useful to their compatriots at home, and so let them go back to Russia as messengers of the good will and of the gratitude and of the hope of the people of Massachusetts.

President John L. Bates then spoke as follows: —

YOUR EXCELLENCY, GOVERNOR MCCALL, DISTINGUISHED REPRESENTATIVE FROM A NEW AND GREAT REPUBLIC, AMBASSADOR BAKHMETIEFF: — It is my very pleasant privilege, on behalf of the members of this Constitutional Convention, to join in the words of welcome that have been extended by His Excellency, and to extend to you the warm greetings of this Convention. His Excellency has referred to some of the incidents in our history that have shown the friendship of the Russian nation for the American people. Let me refer to one or two more.

Address of President
Bates.

There was a certain King George against whom our forefathers rebelled. When the Revolution was at its height, when our armies seemed to be making headway, King George thought he had a very happy idea from which victory might come to his army. He sat down and wrote in his own hand a letter to the great princess, Catherine of Russia, telling her that he could use some of her troops in suppressing the rebellion in his colonies and that he would be willing to pay for some of her gallant fighters. The message came back quickly. It was a stinging rebuke to King George and a gruff refusal to employ her forces in any such manner.

Again, in 1812, when our country was fighting for the freedom of the seas, again at war with England, it was John Quincy Adams of Massachusetts who represented this nation at the court of the Czar. The Czar was his friend; and the friendship of the Czar and of the Russian people for America caused him to offer his good services to bring about a mediation between England and this country. Our President gladly accepted the offer and appointed a commission to confer with Mr. Adams across the seas, but our United States Senate did not like the commission and failed to confirm it. Nevertheless, the moral support of the friendship of Russia at that time meant much to a still struggling nation. So that we have not only in the crisis of the Rebellion the Russian people coming to the support of America, but we have also their support in the days of our Revolution and in the days of the War of 1812. For these instances of friendship, extending over a period of nearly one hundred and fifty years, we would give you, Sir, a most warm welcome.

But, as His Excellency has well said, there are other reasons. We welcome you here because of what you represent at this hour. The world has been passing through a night of horror such as had never visited it before. At the hour when the darkness seemed most intense, when it was broken only by the rumblings of the thunders of war and the lightnings of death, then it was, Sir, that we suddenly discovered, when hope was almost gone, a faint light in the East; and soon we discovered that it was the dawn of a new day, for we heard the exultant cry of a people that were at last free, we heard the rejoicing of a people that had gained their liberty, and we heard the clanking of chains that were to bind them no more. And, Sir, with the coming of that dawn there came into existence a new republic. We had wondered why in God's providence this great conflict had been allowed to go on so far, why there had been so much of human suffering, so much of death and of torture. We began to see that the purposes of God cannot be fathomed by men, but that

“ . . . through the ages one increasing purpose runs,
And the thoughts of men are widened with the process of the suns.”

Why, Sir, the house of the Romanoffs ascended the throne of Russia in 1613, and with it there came into existence the most absolute autocratic rule that the world had known. For three centuries it has maintained itself in strength and power, but, as we believe, Sir, to the detriment of the great masses of the people, who had to endure the tyrannies of that reign. Seven years after the first of the Romanoffs ascended the throne, a little bark anchored fifty miles off here to the east in what we now call Massachusetts Bay; and in the cabin of that little bark the men sat down and signed a written instrument by which they proposed to be governed as to fundamental principles, a written constitution to protect them against the tyranny of rulers and the tyranny of majorities. And that idea of the Mayflower has been developed in this world along with the idea of the absolute autocracy of the House of the Romanoffs. But when the dawn of that day came to which we have referred, we discovered that the star of the Mayflower was in the ascendant and that the star of absolute autocracy was fast setting. We were amazed at the rapidity with which you brought order out of chaos, we were amazed at the thoroughness and the comparative peacefulness of the revolution, and we have been filled with astonishment that your people have been so steady under these trying conditions, and that such progress has been made in self-government.

It seems to us as though today we were sister republics — sister republics having the same lofty ideals, seeking to obtain the same results, aye, and we are fighting the same battles for God. God made men “to conquer hell, and not to fatten like kine in clover”; and may the God of nations grant that out of this European hell of conflict that ambitious autocracy has forced upon humanity, humanity may come forth victorious, and that Russia and America and their Allies, standing together, may force autocracy, tyranny and the divine right of kings back into the abyss, and bury it so deep that it shall never know a resurrection morning.

And so we welcome you. We extend our kindest greetings and our most sincere congratulations.

Members of the Convention, it is now my pleasure to present to you the Ambassador of the new Republic, the Honorable Boris A. Bakhmetieff.

Response was made by Ambassador Bakhmetieff as follows: —

Address of Ambassador
Bakhmetieff.

MR. PRESIDENT AND MEMBERS OF THE CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION: — I am deeply sensible of the honor bestowed upon the members of the mission and myself by giving us the privileges of the floor of this assembly.

I am aware that by this act the people of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, represented in this so distinguished a body, are paying tribute to the efforts of the Nation which I have the honor to represent here, and which after centuries of oppression, has smothered the fetters of tyranny and now stands free on the threshold of self-dependent life and self-government rule.

And is it not a noteworthy coincidence that we, the representatives of the new-born and self-forming democracy of Russia, have arrived in Boston at the very moment of the gathering of this Constitutional Convention of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and thus have been given the privilege and opportunity, so rare and so exclusive, to witness the highest sanctuary of the exercising of the people's will, and to observe this manifestation of the creative power of democracy, of the supreme sovereignty of the people in this oldest of Commonwealths, one of the world's known examples of democratic activity and organization?

Only a few months divide us from the moment when we will call to life the National Constitutional Convention of all Russia — that grand and majestic assembly which has been for so many years the hope and aspiration of the Russian people and which will have to represent, in all its sovereignty and plenitude, the supreme will of the Nation, the creative power of Russian democracy.

It is the Constitutional assembly of Russia which will have to formulate and frame the very bases of the future existence of the Russian Commonwealth, lay the foundation and construct the skeleton of the future structure of the Russian State. And here at this cradle of representative government we find the inspiration of our hope, the blessing of faith for the future of Russia.

Here you are, the very best of the people intrusted with the faith of the citizens of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, creating fundamental law in the name of and for the benefit of your citizens. And there, in the streets, in the beautiful buildings, in the monuments of this historical city, in the meadows, fields and valleys of this wonderful State, breathing with prosperity, comfort and happiness, what do we see? We see the result of your work, of the efforts of your predecessors. We see what democracy has given and what it can afford to give.

And this prosperity, this happiness, all these blessings of free and self-dependent existence, giving everybody the chance and possibility to develop the highest of his qualities and capacities, — doesn't all this inspire our imagination and picture the future Russia, of free, democratic Russia, which, after passing through a transition period with its inevitable strife, clash of interest, occasional disorder and even bloodshed, will settle firmly in the democratic splendors of self-government so as to concentrate all the genius of the Nation, all its talent and capacity, all its latent and restrained activity through the development of the unlimited resources of the country, to the construction of free institutions, to the undaunted flourishing of the national talent of science, art and constructive humanity?

In that happy future, Russia, the great democracy of the East, will stand hand in hand with you, her eldest sister, this great democracy of the West, to uphold throughout the world the high ideals of humanity, liberty and justice, and to guard against oppression and tyranny.

Such is the fascinating future for Russia in the event of the establishment and welding of the befreed Russian Nation into a strong and firm democratic State. To this end are tending the aims of the best spokesmen and challengers of the Russian Nation. To this end are tending the superhuman efforts of the best of her sons, who are using all their endeavors to reorganize and consolidate the fighting power of the Nation, to protect and stand firm against the external foe, the enemy of liberty and justice.

A strong, effective army to fight with all possible vigor for our great common cause is as necessary for the cause of the liberty of Russia as it is for the cause of the liberty of the world. The liberty of Russia depends on the liberty of the world, and — may I say — the liberty of the world depends on the establishment of a democracy in Russia.

Great are the sufferings of Russia. It is the third year that the country has been at war, and its army feels the blow of the enemy. Innumerable is the loss of life; immeasurable the suffering of the widow and the orphan, the toil of the refugee; oppressive the life in the country, where everything for more than two years has been sacrificed for the interest of warfare, and the population deprived of the most elementary commodities. The revolution has imposed new difficulties, new problems, new questions, new necessities. In the melting pot of historical events one perceives occasionally danger; one sees one's self close, occasionally, to the abyss of destruction. But you, — you Americans who have lived twice through the greatest calamities, you who have suffered and lived through national crises, — you have the beneficial example of self-obtaining democracy. You recall the example of unprecedented and flourishing development after the calamities and the catastrophes of the Revolutionary and Civil Wars.

And this gives you faith in democracy, this gives you the understanding of peoples' rule, inspires a new hope, gives you the real perception of historical happenings. And has not the message brought from Russia by the head of the mission which went over there from America, — one of your greatest citizens, of your ablest statesmen, of your deepest thinkers, Senator Elihu Root, — given a most wonderful example of such understanding and historical foresight?

In this brotherly welcome of your people, in these words of comfort, in all the sympathy which we feel, and believe me so sincerely appreciate, in this great people, we find our hope, our inspiration for our endeavors, for our work for the future of Russia.

May I end my short address by hailing, "O long live liberty, long live democracy."

JOURNAL OF THE CONVENTION.

TUESDAY, September 18, 1917.

Met according to adjournment, at half-past ten o'clock A.M.

Prayer was offered by Rev. Arthur D. Stroud of Hudson.

Reception of the Japanese War Mission.

On motion of Mr. Lummus of Lynn, —

Ordered, That a committee of eleven members be appointed to wait upon His Excellency the Governor, and upon His Excellency Viscount Ishii and his distinguished colleagues of the Imperial Japanese War Mission, and inform them that the Massachusetts Constitutional Convention is now in session and requests the pleasure and honor of their presence. The Japanese War Mission.

The President appointed as the committee Messrs. Lummus of Lynn, Boucher of New Bedford, Coombs of Worcester, Wonson of Gloucester, Bailey of Newbury, Good of Cambridge, Smith of Provincetown, Flye of Holbrook, Maguire of Boston, Bryant of Milton and Weekes of Harwich; and they proceeded to the discharge of their duty under escort of the Sergeant-at-Arms.

Soon afterwards Mr. Lummus, for the committee, reported that they had attended to the duty assigned them, and that His Excellency the Governor had accepted the invitation of the Convention for himself and his guests and for the Envoys and their guests, and that they would attend upon the Convention forthwith.

Thereupon His Excellency the Governor, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, His Excellency Viscount Ishii, Ambassador from Japan, and other members of the Japanese Mission, the Council, and His Honor the Mayor of Boston, accompanied by various civil and military officers, entered the Convention Chamber under escort of the Sergeant-at-Arms.

His Excellency Samuel W. McCall, Governor of the Commonwealth, was then presented to the Convention, and spoke as follows: —

MR. PRESIDENT, YOUR EXCELLENCY: — It has been your good fortune to receive the special missions of some of the great nations who are now our allies in arms, and today you enjoy a like honor when you welcome the envoys from the Flowery Kingdom. Two generations ago an American commodore knocked at the portals of the Orient, and the gates swung open. Our visitors have doubtless heard much of Commodore Perry during their travels through our country, and I will spare them more than an allusion to an event which serves signally to mark the beginning of our friendly relations with the great power beyond the Pacific. Address of His Excellency the Governor.

But we must not credit that event with certain results which are due to the progressive spirit and the genius for government characteristic of the Japanese people. What Washington was to America, what Cavour was to Italy, and Bismarck to Germany, all this the Emperor Mutsuhito was to Japan; and the people proved worthy of their leader. While we in America were struggling to save the Union, Japan was in the throes of a revolution which involved not only the unity of the Empire but the character of her civilization. Under the guidance of her young Mikado, whose brilliant statesmanship was no more precocious than it was sagacious and sound, her feudal system was overthrown and upon its ruins was built the fair and enduring fabric of a mighty and a united people. He established a parliamentary system upon the most advanced principles of constitutional liberty, and the quality of the people of Japan, and the development grafted upon it, have put her in the front rank of the great nations. For many centuries Japan had been a hermit nation, having little intercourse with other powers. Her people had lived in a world of their own, and while to us they appeared to slumber, it was a slumber that was throbbing and vital, and full of that richness of spirit that will come to a people who give themselves time to grow.

It was not all gain when they exchanged their serene isolation for a restless and an almost haggard civilization. The western nations have apparently unleashed forces which they cannot control. Those portents of energy called into being by the inventive genius of man have come to threaten us with mastery and we are in danger of becoming their victims and their slaves. They give us in peace a tense industrial and social order and a life out of which much of repose has gone. They have made war so horrible and deadly that our civilization will be compelled to choose between peace and its own suicide. Japan will far more than repay any debt she may owe our western civilization if she shall impart to it something of her old repose, and help subordinate its mighty engines to the use and not to the destruction of man. She is superbly placed upon the globe to aid in extending the domain of law so that barbaric strength and grossness of spirit may never again overturn the balance of the world. She may greatly help to promote that sanity and judgment in adjusting the controversies between nations that now govern in the settlement of individual disputes. She is by our side in this universal war. Side by side may we be when the glorious victory shall have been won. And side by side may we still stand in winning that greater victory by which mankind shall forever be emancipated from its degrading servitude to war. If she shall do that the people of the world will turn their faces to the East and gratefully receive upon their brows the benignant beams of the sun of Nippon.

His Honor James M. Curley, Mayor of the City of Boston, was then presented to the Convention, and spoke as follows:—

Mr. PRESIDENT, YOUR EXCELLENCY, DISTINGUISHED AND HONORED VISITORS, MEMBERS OF THE CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION:—This has indeed been a most eventful year in the life of Massachusetts. Within this chamber, dedicated to the making of laws for the promotion of the welfare of the people, it has been our great privilege to welcome that colossal figure from our sister republic of France, the immortal hero of the Marne, Marshal Joffre. It has been our extreme pleasure to welcome here the representative of the Italian people; it has been our great pleasure to welcome here the representative of that small but mighty host who stood in the pathway of imperial brutality and Prussian militarism and saved democracy, the representative of Belgium. It has been our great privilege as lovers of liberty and advocates of peace and order and justice in the administration of public affairs to welcome with open arms and with open, warm hearts the representatives of the new Republic of Russia.

Address of
His Honor

There has gradually been unfolded and evolved in the process that has taken place in this capitol structure and the other capitols of the United States a new form of diplomacy. There has been an abandonment of the old principle of secret diplomacy, and that abandonment lends color to the belief and strength to the hope that, in the future, nations as individuals will formulate and base opinion on a true perspective rather than a narrow vision. And in this hour of the nation's life, the most crucial and critical, it is our great pleasure as a municipality and as a State to welcome the representatives of the mighty Empire of the East, Japan, to welcome them in a trend of thought and in a spirit and purpose of ideal both new and strange to Japan and America — to welcome them because of the ideals that they today represent in this titanic world struggle; to welcome them in the same spirit that America portrays in this world struggle, in the spirit of service to humanity without desire either for indemnity or for annexation of territory; to welcome them in a spirit of ideal and true democracy; and to say to them and through them to the people of Japan that in this struggle for stable government, in this struggle for permanent world peace, we welcome them as an ally, not to the conclusion of the present war alone but to the end of time.

President John L. Bates then spoke as follows: —

DISTINGUISHED REPRESENTATIVES OF JAPAN: — On behalf of this Constitutional Convention I join in the hearty welcome being extended to you not only by Boston and Massachusetts but also by all America.

Address
of President
Bates.

Massachusetts maintains not only that every individual but that every nation has an equal right to the pursuit of life, liberty and happiness and to establish its own form of government. She is the uncompromising foe of tyranny and oppression. She can not tolerate a diplomacy that makes solemn treaties but scraps of paper or that substitutes might for right in its motive for action. She believes she has added something to the sum total of human liberties through the contribution she has made to the development of the principles of constitutional government, of representative democracy and of the separation of legislative, executive and judicial functions. Not satisfied with what has been attained, she ever looks forward to new ideals and works toward them, and so, while we are in arms fighting the common enemy of mankind, we are here examining anew the fundamental principles of our government to the end that as a State we may be most efficient in doing our part in the onward progress of men.

Within the memory of men now sitting here, America stretched out her friendly hands to Japan across the sea and invited her to the family circle of nations. Japan accepted the invitation, and since that time has made such marvelous progress as to win the admiration of the world and has developed an efficiency rarely equalled and seldom, if ever, excelled. Great as has been the change in Japan, equally great has been the change in the world. Then we looked upon you as on the far side of the globe, 10,000 miles across the sea. Now you are our next door neighbor, for within these years the wonderful unfolding of the human mind has developed those means of transportation and communication that have knitted the world together, and the mountain ranges are not high enough, nor the wastes of the seas wide enough to be barriers between men. No longer is any place remote. There is neither East nor West, North nor South, but all is here. As neighbors then we welcome you, for we have great problems to work out together for our mutual welfare, and trust that your visit will so advance their solution as to tend toward the perpetuation of the friendship and good will that has so long existed between us.

We welcome you not only as representatives of a great, respected and friendly nation, but also as allies in the greatest war in all history. These are indeed troublous times. A hurricane of savagery sweeps the world. From beneath the deep dragons lift their heads and crush the beneficent commerce. From out of the earth they belch forth liquid fire and poisonous vapors. They wing their way to the very heavens and drop death into the blanched faces of men. Yet our courage falters not for, look! amid the tumult and the tempest we see the tricolors of France and Belgium and Russia and Italy, the intertwined crosses of Saint George, Saint Andrew and Saint Patrick, the Rising Sun of Japan and the Stars and Stripes of America, all waving side by side on the battle line and all advancing together. And we know no enemy can withstand them, and that tyranny and selfishness, bad faith and hatred shall be buried in trenches of their own digging, that out of this shedding of blood there shall come the binding of nations together, that out of this reign of terror there shall come a reign of peace, and that the spirit of righteousness, good will and brotherhood shall spread and be triumphant everywhere.

Response was then made by His Excellency Viscount Ishii, Ambassador from Japan, as follows:—

YOUR EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR, MR. PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION:—I am highly complimented by an invitation to address you in this House, which throughout your history has rung with eloquence unsurpassed in any tongue, with the loftiest appeals to the noblest sentiments of mankind from the lips of patriots whose names are written large on the walls of the corridors of fame.

Address
of Viscount Ishii.

But it would not become me to occupy your time or interrupt momentous discussions which are of vital importance not only to your country but to all the world. Let me say, however, that Massachusetts and New England are very close to Japan. Many of our leading men owe to these surroundings the impressions and the education which has enabled them to take their places in the varying walks of life in their homeland. Next to the land of their birth, dear to them above all else on earth, they recall college friends and the happy days spent in study and at play at Cambridge. These always pay a tribute of affection to their alma mater and take increasing pride in the splendid record she is making in the upbuilding of men and a nation.

Massachusetts and New England have wielded a vast influence upon the civilization of our time. In literature, art, science and industry that influence has been felt and is being exercised throughout the world. In all of these there has been no narrow prejudice, for you have gathered from and sent to the furthest corners of the earth the most representative and best.

Japan owes much to Massachusetts and to Boston. We have learned from you at home, and your men and women have labored in our midst unselfishly and well to our great advantage.

In this connection you will permit me to pay a tribute to the memory of a great New England gentleman whose name is well known to you and who will by all others from New England or elsewhere be ungrudgingly conceded a premier place among those who have worked unselfishly and effectively for the betterment of mankind. I refer to the late Henry Willard Denison, for over thirty years the guide, the counsellor and the friend of Japan. He was my friend, and I cannot let this opportunity go by to say that I am honored by the memory of that friendship. Not only this, but he was the friend of Japan, and all Japan, from His Imperial Majesty, the Emperor, to the least among us, unite in laying tribute at his resting place on the hills above the capital.

He was a great American who typified America in all his life and who has done more than all the rest of us to weld the bonds that he knew and I know must bind us. Rugged, strong, brave and independent, Denison lived and died an American and lived and died his faith unflinching in the future of our relationship.

And now, gentlemen of this Convention, in thanking you for your courtesy and your patience, permit me, before leaving you to your deliberations, to quote from an address delivered here in Boston, sixty-nine years ago — an address that must deeply impress itself on any reader and on everyone who seeks, as you and I and all of us must, to build our nations to the highest point of national achievement and greatness. It was Charles Sumner who said — he may have been speaking from this historic rostrum:

“This true grandeur of humanity is in moral elevation, sustained and lightened and decorated by the intellect of man. The truest tokens of this grandeur in a State are the diffusion of the greatest happiness among the greatest number and the passionless justice which controls the relations of the State to other States and to all the people committed to its charge."

Applying this great utterance as a rule for guidance in international affairs, I can say to you that it fills the ideal of the true spirit of Japan in her dealings with you and with the world. I thank you.

His Excellency, His Honor, Viscount Ishii, the Council, the Mayor and other guests then withdrew. The President announced that opportunity would immediately be given the members to greet in person the distinguished guests in Memorial Hall.

On motion of Mr. Powers of Newton the addresses of the Governor, the Mayor, the President and Viscount Ishii were ordered printed as a part of the records of the Convention.

JOURNAL OF THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE.

TUESDAY, September 18, 1917.

Mr. Pillsbury of Wellesley in the chair.

The Resolution to provide for establishing the initiative and referendum (Doc. No. 335) was considered further. Initiative and referendum.

After debate the pending question "Shall the decision of the Chair stand as the judgment of the Committee?" was decided in the affirmative, by a vote of 134 to 124.

On the recurring question the following amendment, previously moved by Mr. Anderson of Newton, was adopted, by a vote of 131 to 130: —

Adding at the end of line 35 the words "Provided that, unless at least one-third of the members of the house present and voting and one-quarter of the members of the senate present and voting in both of the annual sessions aforesaid vote to adopt the initiative petition for a constitutional amendment, it shall not be submitted to the people."

Mr. Swig of Taunton withdrew the amendment previously moved by him, there being no objection.

The same member then moved that the resolution be amended as follows: —

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE, concerning the same general subject signed by ten qualified voters may be filed with the secretary of the commonwealth, and if, in the case of a constitutional amendment, the remainder of the forty thousand signatures, and in the case of a law, the remainder of twenty thousand signatures to said petition, shall be filed not later than the first Wednesday of the following December, the secretary of the commonwealth shall transmit such petition to the clerk of the house of representatives, and the proposed constitutional amendment or law which is the subject of such petition shall then be deemed to be introduced into that general court and pending in the house of representatives."

Mr. Balch of Boston moved to amend the resolution by adding at the end of line 163 the words "governor, the attorney-general and the"; and by inserting after the word "commonwealth," in line 164, the words "or a majority of them,".

Mr. Anderson of Newton moved that the resolution be amended by adding at the end of line 54 the words "Provided that, unless at least one-third of the members of the house present and voting and one-quarter of the members of the senate present and voting vote to adopt the initiative petition for a law, it shall not be submitted to the people."

Mr. Mancovitz of Boston moved that this amendment moved by Mr. Anderson be amended as follows: —

By striking out the word "one-third", and inserting in place thereof the word "one-fourth";

By striking out the word "one-quarter", and inserting in place thereof the word "one-fifth"; and

After debate Mr. Clapp of Lexington moved that the question first be put on the last amendment moved by Mr. Mancovitz; and this motion prevailed. Said amendment was then adopted, by a vote of 234 to 0.

At three minutes past one o'clock (the Chairman not having dissolved the meeting) Mr. Mancovitz moved that the Committee rise; and this motion was negatived.

The amendment striking out the word "one-third" and inserting in place thereof the word "one-fourth" was rejected, by a vote of 120 to 131.

The amendment striking out the word "one-quarter" and inserting in place thereof the word "one-fifth" was rejected, by a vote of 129 to 134.

At fifteen minutes past one o'clock Mr. Edwin U. Curtis of Boston moved that the Committee rise; and this motion was negatived.

After further debate the amendment moved by Mr. Anderson, as amended, was rejected, by a vote of 127 to 134.

At twenty-six minutes before two o'clock Mr. Horgan of Boston moved that the Committee rise; and this motion was adopted.

Accordingly the Committee rose.

After the recess the Committee resumed consideration of its Docket, Mr. Pillsbury being in the chair.

The Resolution to provide for establishing the initiative and referendum (Doc. No. 335) was considered further. Initiative and referendum.

The following amendment, previously moved by Mr. Luce of Waltham, was considered: Adding after line 54 the following paragraph: —

“If proposed laws contain conflicting provisions, the governor shall designate one of such laws to be submitted to the voters. If it is rejected, the governor in office on the first Wednesday of August before the succeeding election [A] may designate another to be put on the ballot, and so on until one has been accepted or all have been rejected.”

Mr. Quincy of Boston moved that this amendment be amended by the substitution of the following paragraph, with the heading “Conflicting Measures”: —

“All proposed measures to be submitted to the people at any one election shall be submitted by the secretary of the commonwealth to the attorney-general for his inspection, and in case two or more proposed constitutional amendments, or two or more proposed laws, to be submitted to the people at any one election, under the provisions hereof or otherwise, shall appear to the attorney-general to be in substantial conflict with each other, he may order that such conflicting constitutional amendments, or such conflicting laws, shall be grouped and designated on the ballot as conflicting measures, only one of which is to be adopted; but in no case shall a proposed constitutional amendment and a proposed law be so grouped as in conflict with each other, and the ballot shall afford an opportunity to each voter to vote for or against each of the measures so grouped as conflicting. In case more than one of the measures so grouped as conflicting shall receive the affirmative vote of a majority of the voters voting thereon, only that one of the same for which the largest affirmative vote was cast shall be deemed to be approved.

“In case any provisions of two or more constitutional amendments, or of two or more laws, approved by the people at the same election are in conflict with each other, then the provisions contained in the constitutional amendment, or in the law, as the case may be, which received the largest number of affirmative votes shall be deemed to govern.

“Any law approved by the people shall be subject to any amendment to the constitution approved by the people at the same election, in the same manner as if such amendment had been in force prior to the approval of such law.”

Mr. Shanahan of Somerville moved that the amendment moved by Mr. Luce be amended at “A” by striking out the word “may”, and inserting in place thereof the word “shall”.

After debate the further consideration of the amendments of Messrs. Luce, Quincy and Shanahan was postponed until the next session of the Committee, on motion of Mr. Williams of Brookline.

The remaining amendment at line 54, previously moved by Mr. Luce of Waltham, was considered as changed by that gentleman, there being no objection, as follows: Adding after line 54 the following paragraph: —

“The same measure, either in form or essential substance, shall not be made the subject of an initiative petition (either affirmatively or negatively) [A] oftener than once in three years. The attorney-general shall certify before an initiative petition is filed that the measure petitioned for is not, either in form or in essential substance, either affirmatively or negatively, the same as any measure which has been submitted to the people within three years of such date.”

Mr. Kilbon of Springfield moved that this amendment be amended by inserting at the beginning thereof the words “If a measure shall have been accepted or rejected by a majority greater than ten per cent of the votes cast upon it”, and by striking out at “A” the words “oftener than once in three years”, and inserting in place thereof the words “until three years shall have elapsed”. After debate these amendments were rejected.

The amendment moved by Mr. Luce was then adopted, by a vote of 143 to 113.

Mr. White of North Brookfield then moved that the Committee rise; and this motion was adopted.

Accordingly the Committee rose.

The general court shall be sole judge of the existence of the conditions justifying such authorizations. Nothing in this article contained shall be construed as permitting any taking of property without reasonable compensation therefor."

Orders of the Day.

The Convention then proceeded to the consideration of the Orders of the Day.

The Resolution to authorize the enactment of laws governing the acquirement, sale and distribution of the necessities of life (Doc. No. 318), being the unfinished business of the last session, was considered further.

Necessities of life, —
acquirement, sale and
distribution.

Mr. Anderson of Brookline (Mr. Willett of Norwood being in the chair) withdrew the amendment previously moved by him, there being no objection.

The same member then moved that the resolution be amended by striking out the article of amendment, and inserting in place thereof the following: — "Provision may be made by law to authorize the taking by purchase or otherwise by the commonwealth of foodstuffs, feeds, fuel, ice and other necessities of life, paying reasonable compensation therefor, and the sale of the same to the inhabitants thereof and to any county, city, town or other municipal corporation therein; the governor, with the approval of the council, if he deems that a public exigency exists, may, until otherwise provided by law, exercise the powers hereby granted. Provision may be made by law to authorize municipalities to buy and to sell to their inhabitants the necessities of life and to harvest and to manufacture ice; and to provide for the establishment, maintenance and operation by the commonwealth and by cities and towns of markets, docks, fuel and coal yards, elevators, warehouses, canneries, slaughter houses, cold storage plants and other like means for collecting and converting, selling and distributing the necessities of life. The use of uniform methods of accounting throughout the commonwealth shall be provided for by law for any undertakings under the authority of this article."

Mr. Pillsbury of Wellesley withdrew the amendment previously moved by him, there being no objection.

The same member then moved that the resolution be amended by striking out the article of amendment, and inserting in place thereof the following: —

"The legislature, when and so far as in its judgment a public exigency exists therefor, may provide for the purchase or taking by the commonwealth, paying reasonable compensation therefor, of foods or foodstuffs, feeds, fuel or ice, for sale to its inhabitants or to any county, city or town and resale by such county, city or town to its inhabitants, and in connection therewith may provide for the purchase or taking by the commonwealth, paying reasonable compensation therefor, of the right to occupy and use any building or structure with the machinery or fixtures appurtenant thereto, or any other premises, so far and so long as may be necessary to such purposes. If in the judgment of the governor such public exigency arises when the legislature is not in session, the governor, with the approval of the council, may exercise the authority vested in the legislature by this section until the legislature reconvenes."

The same member moved that the amendment previously moved by Mr. Edwin U. Curtis of Boston be amended by striking out the words "may authorize the establishment, maintenance and operation by the commonwealth, cities and towns of markets, docks, fuel and coal yards, elevators, warehouses, canneries and slaughter houses", and inserting in place thereof the words "may authorize the commonwealth to purchase or take, paying reasonable compensation therefor, the right to occupy and use any building or structure with the machinery or fixtures appurtenant thereto, or any other premises, so far and so long as may be necessary to such purposes".

On motion of Mr. Walsh of Fitchburg the foregoing amendments were ordered printed as a supplement to the Calendar for to-day.

Recess.

At two minutes before one o'clock, on motion of Mr. Adams of Quincy (the President having resumed the chair), recess was taken until two o'clock; at which hour the Convention reassembled.

The Secretary announced the temporary absence of the President, and stated that Mr. Washburn of Worcester had been appointed to perform the duties of the Chair.

Quorum.

Mr. Dutch of Winchester doubted the presence of a quorum. The Chair requested the Sergeant-at-Arms to secure the attendance of a quorum.

On the appearance of a quorum Mr. Quincy of Boston moved that, upon the expiration of the time allotted for debate, the committee on Public Affairs be granted fifteen minutes. After debate this motion was adopted, by a vote of 112 to 54.

After debate (the President having taken the chair) the amendments previously moved by Messrs. Clapp of Lexington, Bigney of Boston, Quincy of Boston, Balch of Boston and George of Haverhill, the second amendment previously moved by Mr. Williams of Brookline, and the amendment previously moved by Mr. Adams of Quincy were severally withdrawn by those members, there being no objection.

The amendment previously moved by Mr. Brackett of Arlington was rejected, by a vote of 48 to 169.

The amendment previously moved by Mr. Williams of Brookline was also rejected.

The foregoing amendment, moved by Mr. Pillsbury of Wellesley was rejected, by a vote of 96 to 157.

On motion of Mr. Clapp of Lexington the following amendment, previously moved by Mr. Edwin U. Curtis of Boston, was next considered: —

Striking out the article of amendment, and inserting in place thereof the following: —

"The general court, when and so far as in its judgment a public exigency exists therefor and while it continues, may authorize the commonwealth to provide temporary shelter and to take by eminent domain or purchase foodstuffs, fuel and ice, and feed for animals, and to sell the same to the inhabitants thereof or to any county, city, town or other municipal corporation therein, which may resell the same to their inhabitants; and in connection therewith may authorize the establishment, maintenance and operation by the commonwealth, cities and towns of markets, docks, fuel and coal yards, elevators, warehouses, canneries and slaughter houses. When the general court is not in session, the governor, with the approval of the council, may exercise the authority vested in the general court by this section, until the general court reconvenes."

The amendment of this amendment, moved by Mr. Pillsbury of Wellesley, was rejected.

On the amendment of Mr. Curtis 118 members voted in the affirmative and 143 in the negative.

“If a proposal for a specific amendment of the constitution is introduced into the general court by initiative petition signed by not less than twenty-five thousand qualified voters in the manner herein provided, or by recommendation of the governor by message, or if in case of a proposal for amendment otherwise introduced consideration thereof in joint session is called for by vote of either house, such proposal shall, not later than the second Wednesday in June, be laid before a joint session of the two houses, at which the president of the senate shall preside; and if the two houses fail to agree upon a time for holding any joint session hereby required, or fail to continue the same from time to time until final action has been taken upon all amendments pending, the governor shall call such joint session or continuance thereof. Final legislative action upon any amendment shall be taken only by call of the yeas and nays, which shall be entered upon the journals of the two houses; and an unfavorable vote at any legislative stage preceding final action shall be verified by call of the yeas and nays, to be entered in like manner. An amendment introduced by initiative petition shall be voted upon in the form in which it was introduced, provided that such amendment may be amended in any manner not inconsistent with its general purpose by vote of three-quarters of the members voting thereon in joint session. An amendment introduced by recommendation of the governor shall be voted upon either in the form in which it was originally recommended or in such amended form as the governor may by message approve or substitute.

“An amendment introduced by initiative petition or by the governor shall be designated an initiative amendment, and an amendment otherwise introduced shall be designated a legislative amendment. At such joint session, if a legislative amendment shall be agreed to by a majority of all the members elected to the general court, or if an initiative amendment shall receive the affirmative votes of not less than one-quarter of all the members elected to the general court, in either case such amendment shall be deemed to be referred to the next general court.

“If any legislative amendment shall again be agreed to by a majority of all the members elected to the next general court, voting in a joint session of the two houses to be held as aforesaid, it shall then be submitted by the general court to the people. If any initiative amendment shall again receive in the next general court the affirmative votes of at least one-quarter of all the members elected, such fact shall be certified by the clerk of such joint convention to the secretary of the commonwealth and he shall submit the amendment to the people at the next state election. Any amendment so submitted shall be adopted and become part of the constitution if approved in the case of a legislative amendment by a majority of the voters voting thereon, or if approved in the case of an initiative amendment by voters at least equal in number to thirty per cent. of the voters voting at such election and also by a majority of the voters voting on such amendment.

By striking out, in lines 61 and 62, the words "five thousand additional signatures of such qualified voters", and inserting in place thereof the words "one per cent. of such qualified voters, calculated upon the whole number of votes cast for governor at the last preceding election, in addition to those signing such initiative petition,".

After debate the question was put on these amendments, and 98 members voted in the affirmative and 84 in the negative.

Whereas, Under the orders heretofore passed by the Convention, the final payment of salary to its members will be made at the end of the month of October, leaving no provision for payment of any further compensation thereafter; and

Whereas, It appears impossible for the Convention to take action before the first day of November upon the 170 reports of its committees which still await consideration, 23 of such reports recommending the adoption of amendments to the Constitution, many of which are of great public importance; and

Whereas, It is claimed that many members of the Convention will be financially unable to continue their attendance after the close of the month of October, unless provision is made for a continuance of the compensation of members at the rate of one hundred and fifty dollars a month heretofore paid, and all members of the Convention are fairly entitled to continue to receive such compensation during such reasonable time as may be necessary to enable the Convention to finish its business; and Therefore the vote was reconsidered.

On the recurring question Mr. Avery of Holyoke moved that the order be amended by the substitution of the following: —

Ordered, That the sessions of the Convention continue until Wednesday, November 28, and that, if all its business be not then disposed of, it adjourn until called by the President or Secretary to meet not later than within ten days after the prorogation of the General Court of 1918; and until the time of such adjournment on November 28 the Resolution to provide for establishing the initiative and referendum shall, whenever upon the Calendar, take precedence over all other matters in the Orders of the Day, except motions to reconsider; and provided that, in case final action has not been taken on the said resolution on or before the said 28th day of November, the sessions of the Convention shall continue until such final action has been taken, and upon the taking of such final action the Convention shall adjourn subject to call by the President or Secretary as aforesaid.

 amendment.

After debate Mr. Walker of Brookline (Mr. Underhill of Somerville being in the chair) moved that Rule 38 be suspended; and this motion, after debate, was negatived. Therefore the Chair (Mr. Underhill) declared that the amendment was improperly before the Convention.

Mr. Bates of Brookline then moved that the order be amended by the substitution of the following: —

amendment.

Ordered, That the sessions of the Convention continue until Wednesday, November 28, and that, if all its business be not then disposed of, it adjourn until called by the President or Secretary to meet not later than within ten days after the prorogation of the General Court of 1918; and until the time of such adjournment on November 28 the Resolution to provide for establishing the initiative and referendum shall, whenever upon the Calendar, take precedence over all other matters in the Orders of the Day, except as otherwise provided by the rules of the Convention; and provided that, in case final action has not been taken on the said resolution on or before the said 28th day of November, the sessions of the Convention shall continue until such final action has been taken, and upon the taking of such final action the Convention shall adjourn subject to call by the President or Secretary as aforesaid.

Mr. Lomasney of Boston moved that the order be laid on the table; and this motion, after debate, was adopted.

The President having resumed the chair the following order was considered: —

Adjournment
after final action on the initiative and referendum.

Ordered, That, after the final disposition of the amendments that are to go on the ballot this year, nothing be considered but the initiative and referendum; and that, after this amendment has been finally acted upon, the Convention adjourn until the first Tuesday of June, 1918.

Mr. Buttrick of Lancaster moved that the order be laid on the table; and this motion prevailed.

Initiative and referendum.

The Resolution to provide for establishing the initiative and referendum (Doc. No. 359, amended) was considered further, the main question being on ordering it to a second reading.

Mr. Anderson,
— amendment.

Mr. Anderson of Newton moved that the resolution be amended by striking out lines 48 to 69, inclusive, and the word "law", in line 70, and inserting in place thereof the following: —

"If an initiative petition for a law is introduced into the general court in the manner hereinafter provided signed by not less than twenty thousand qualified voters, [A] or if a proposed law is introduced into the general court by recommendation of the governor by message, such proposed law shall not later than the second Wednesday in June be laid before a joint session of the two houses, at which the president of the senate shall preside; and if the two houses fail to agree upon a time for holding any joint session hereby required, or fail to continue the same from time to time until final action has been taken upon all such proposed laws pending before it, the governor shall call such joint session or continuance thereof. The final legislative action in such joint session upon any such proposed law shall be taken only by call of the yeas and nays, which shall be entered upon the journals of the two houses; and an unfavorable vote at any legislative stage preceding final action shall be verified by call of the yeas and nays, to be entered in like manner. A proposed law introduced by initiative petition shall be voted upon in the form in which it was introduced, provided that it may be amended by vote of three-fourths of the members present and voting thereon in joint session, and any such vote shall be verified by call of the yeas and nays if called for by not less than forty members. [B] A proposed law introduced by recommendation of the governor shall be voted upon either in the form in which it was originally recommended or in such amended form as the governor may by message approve or substitute.

"If any such proposed law shall receive in such joint session the affirmative votes of at least one-fourth of all the members present and voting thereon, such fact shall be certified by the clerk of such joint convention to the secretary of the commonwealth and said secretary shall submit such proposed law to the people at the next state election [C], provided that in the case of a law recommended by the governor a certificate shall be filed by the governor with the secretary of state not later than said first Wednesday in August calling for such submission; and if such proposed law shall be approved by voters voting thereon at least equal in number to thirty per cent of the voters voting at such election, and also by a majority of the voters voting on such proposed law, then such proposed law shall become law, and shall take effect in thirty days after such state election or at such time after such election as may be provided in such law."

Mr. Loring of Beverly moved that the amendment moved by Mr. Anderson be amended by the substitution of the following: — Mr. Loring, — amendment.

Striking out, in lines 55 to 57, the words "and if the general court into which it is introduced fails to enact such law", and inserting in place thereof the following "or as amended by a vote of three-quarters of the members present and voting in each branch. If of the members present and voting one-third of the house and one-fourth of the senate vote for such enactment, but enactment fails".

By striking out, at "C", the words ", provided, that in the case of a law recommended by the governor a certificate shall be filed by the governor with the secretary of state not later than said first Wednesday in August calling for such submission".

After debate the amendments moved by Mr. Youngman were adopted, by a vote of 129 to 80.

Support of the Second Liberty Loan.

The following order, offered by Mr. Michelman of Boston, was considered: — Second Liberty Loan, — adjournment over October 24.

Whereas, The President of the United States by proclamation has set aside the twenty-fourth day of October as Liberty Day; and

Whereas, In accordance with said Proclamation His Excellency the Governor of this Commonwealth has set aside the same day for the purpose of allowing the citizens of this Commonwealth to advance the success of the Second Liberty Loan; and

Whereas, By said proclamation His Excellency the Governor has suggested that the people of this Commonwealth, in so far as possible, desist from their regular employment and aid the government in its need; therefore be it

Resolved, That the delegates of this Convention, in accordance with said proclamations of the President and of His Excellency the Governor, devote the said twenty-fourth day of October to arousing the people of this Commonwealth to respond to the call of our country in subscribing for the Second Liberty Loan; and it is hereby Ordered, That, when the Convention adjourns to-day, it adjourn to meet on Thursday, October 25.

Quorum.

Mr. Glazier of Hudson doubted the presence of a quorum; and the President requested the Sergeant-at-Arms to secure the attendance of a quorum.

Mr. Parkman,
— amendments.

On the appearance of a quorum Mr. Parkman of Boston moved that the order be amended by striking out the last two paragraphs thereof, and inserting in place thereof the following:

Resolved, That the delegates of this Convention, in accordance with said proclamations of the President and of His Excellency the Governor, adjourn and devote themselves to arousing the people of this Commonwealth to respond to the call of our country in subscribing for the Second Liberty Loan; and it is hereby Ordered, That, if the Convention is in session at one o'clock P.M. on Wednesday, October 24, the President shall declare an adjournment until Thursday, October 25.

Sessions of the Legislature".

Ordered, That the Secretary of the Convention be instructed to replace, for the members of the Convention and for the public, Bulletin No. 9, on "Biennial Elections and Sessions of the Legislature", with a new edition under the same title, to include the present edition and the material printed as Convention Document No. 355, and also a bibliography of the subject in the legislative reference library.

Mr. Bates, —
amendment.

Pending the recurring question on the adoption of the order Mr. Bates modified his pending amendment, there being no objection, so as to read as follows: —

"Whereas, A majority of the members of the Convention have indicated their belief that the remaining business before them cannot be satisfactorily completed during the present calendar year; and

Whereas, The Convention has now been in continuous session for a length of time exceeding that anticipated by any of its members, many of whom find it necessary to devote themselves for a period to their business [A] and professional duties; and

Whereas, There is no measure undisposed of that may properly be termed an emergency measure; and

Whereas, It will now be impossible to place upon the ballot at the November election any other resolutions of amendment than those already favorably acted upon; and

Whereas, The Convention has the unquestioned power to adjourn from time to time at its pleasure, as recognized in the Convention Act; now, therefore, be it

Ordered, That the sessions of the Convention continue until Friday, November 23, and that, if all its business be not then disposed of, it adjourn until called by the President or Secretary to meet not later than within ten days after the prorogation of the General Court of 1918; and until the time of such adjournment on November 23 the Resolution to provide for establishing the initiative and referendum shall, whenever upon the Calendar, take precedence over all other matters in the Orders of the Day, except as otherwise provided in the rules of the Convention; and provided that, in case final action has not been taken on the said resolution on or before the said 23rd day of November, the sessions of the Convention shall continue until such final action has been taken, and upon the taking of such final action the Convention shall adjourn subject to call by the President or Secretary as aforesaid.

After debate Mr. Fisher of Westford moved that the amendment be amended, in the second paragraph thereof, by striking out, at "A", the words "and professional", and inserting in place thereof the words ", professional, public and patriotic".

Mr. Fisher, — amendment.

There being no objection Mr. Bates accepted, as a part of his amendment, the amendment moved by Mr. Fisher.

After further debate the amendment moved by Mr. Bates, as thus modified, was adopted; and the order, as thus amended, was adopted.

On motion of Mr. Buttrick of Lancaster the following order was taken from the table: —

The order was then rejected.

Special Committee to Consider Changes Wrought by the War.

The consideration of the following order, offered by Mr. Adams of Quincy, was postponed until the next session, on motion of that member: —

Ordered, That, this Convention having voted to adjourn until next spring, previous to its adjournment the President shall appoint a committee of not more than 15 nor less than 12 members, who shall proceed during the recess to consider, so far as time will permit, —

Special recess committee, — changes wrought by the war.

1. The economic, social and legal changes which have been already wrought in our domestic and foreign relations by the present war, together with those of the greatest importance which seem likely soon to supervene;

2. If, by their labors, the committee shall reach the conclusion that, by some comprehensive treatment of the whole of our constitutional law, — not only that which is contained in the Constitution itself, but also that which is to be drawn from the judicial interpretation which the same has received, — it may be possible for said committee to develop some cohesive plan by which the people of this Commonwealth shall be placed in a position to deal more effectively with the increasingly strenuous pressure of modern competition than they otherwise could, then the committee shall report the same to this Convention so soon as it shall reconvene, and the Convention shall forthwith proceed to deliberate upon the same;

3. The committee shall be empowered to ask from the General Court an appropriation sufficient to pay for the necessary expense which the committee shall incur in the performance of its functions.

Revision of the Rules of the Convention.

The consideration of the following order, offered by Mr. Besse of Newburyport, was postponed until the next session, at the request of Mr. Jones of Melrose: —

Committee on Rules and Procedure, — revision of rules during the recess.

Ordered, That the committee on Rules and Procedure be instructed to improve, revise, amend or form new rules that will tend to expedite the proceedings of this Convention, said committee to meet during the term of adjournment and to report immediately upon the reconvening of the Convention and this committee be and hereby is instructed to embody in their new set of rules the abolishment of the Committee of the Whole.

Orders of the Day.

The Convention then proceeded to the consideration of the Orders of the Day.

Initiative and referendum.

The Resolution to provide for establishing the initiative and referendum (Doc. No. 359, amended), being the unfinished business of the last session, was considered further, the main question being on ordering it to a second reading.

The amendment previously moved by Mr. Loring of Beverly to the amendment previously moved by Mr. Anderson of Newton was rejected, by a vote of 70 to 100.

The amendment previously moved by Mr. Anderson was also rejected.

Mr. Quincy,
— amendment.

Mr. Quincy of Boston moved that the resolution be amended by adding, after line 82, the following paragraph, with the heading "Conflicting and Alternative Measures": —

"The general court by resolve passed by yea and nay vote either by the two houses sitting separately, or by a majority of those present and voting thereon in joint convention held as herein provided, may provide for grouping and designating upon the ballot either as conflicting measures or as alternative measures, only one of which is to be adopted, any two or more proposed constitutional amendments, or any two or more proposed laws, which have been or may be passed or qualified for submission to the people at any one election, under the provisions of this amendment or otherwise; but a proposed constitutional amendment and a proposed law shall not in any case be so grouped.

"The general court may by resolve passed as aforesaid provide for the submission to the people of a substitute for any measure introduced by initiative petition which has been or may be passed or qualified for submission to the people as herein provided, the same to be designated on the ballot as the legislative substitute for such an initiative measure and to be grouped with the same as an alternative therefor.

"The ballot shall afford an opportunity to the voter to vote for or against each of the measures so grouped as conflicting or as alternatives. In case more than one of the measures so grouped shall receive the vote required for its approval as herein provided, only that one of the same for which the largest affirmative vote was cast shall be deemed to be approved; in the case of two measures so grouped as alternatives if neither shall receive such required vote but the aggregate affirmative vote cast for both of the same shall exceed the vote cast against either of the same, then that one of such measures for which the higher affirmative vote was cast shall again be placed upon the ballot at the coming state election, without being grouped with any other measure, and if approved by the voters by the vote herein required for the approval of a constitutional amendment or of a law, as the case may be, shall be adopted and take effect as herein provided.

"In case in any judicial proceeding any provisions of two or more constitutional amendments, or of two or more laws, approved by the people at the same election are held to be in conflict with each other, then the provisions contained in the constitutional amendment, or in the law, as the case may be, which received the largest number of affirmative votes at such election shall be deemed to govern."

After debate Mr. Churchill of Amherst, there being no objection, moved that the further consideration of this amendment be postponed until after the consideration of other amendments; and this motion prevailed.

Mr. Swig of Taunton moved that the resolution be amended by inserting after the word "commonwealth", in line 111, the words ", and no law relating to religion, religious practices or religious institutions".

amendment.

After debate this amendment was adopted.

Mr. Walker of Brookline moved that the resolution be amended by adding, after line 109, the following paragraph: —

Mr. Walker, —
amendment.

"If the general court fails to agree to pass a proposed law before the first Wednesday of June, the first ten signers of the amendment shall become part of the constitution of this commonwealth.

“Laws.— If an initiative petition for a law is introduced into the general court in the manner hereinafter provided, signed by not less than five state senators or ex-senators and twenty-five representatives or ex-representatives of the commonwealth, and the general court into which it is introduced fails to enact such law before the first Wednesday of June; and if such initiative petition is completed by filing with the secretary of the commonwealth, not earlier than the first Wednesday of the following July nor later than the first Wednesday of the following August not less than two additional signatures of such senators or ex-senators and five representatives or ex-representatives then the secretary of the commonwealth shall submit such proposed law to the people at the next state election; and if it shall be approved by a majority of the qualified voters voting thereon, such proposed law shall, subject to the provisions of the constitution, become law, and shall take effect in thirty days after such state election or at such time after such election as may be provided in such law.”

After debate the amendment was rejected.

Mr. Cummings,
— amendment.

Mr. Cummings of Fall River moved that the resolution be amended by adding, after line 112, the following paragraph: —

Mr. Dutch, —
amendment.

After debate Mr. Dutch of Winchester moved that the amendment be amended by inserting, at “A”, the word “powers,”.

After further debate Mr. Cummings, there being no objection, accepted, as part of his amendment, the amendment moved by Mr. Dutch.

The question was then put on the amendment, as thus modified, and 135 members voted in the affirmative and 99 in the negative.

The sense of the Convention was then taken by yeas and nays at the request of Mr. Walker of Brookline; and on the roll call 142 members voted in the affirmative and 111 in the negative, as follows: —

142 yeas; 111 nays.

Therefore the amendment moved by Mr. Cummings was adopted, as follows: Adding, after line 112, the following paragraph: —

“No law or amendment to the constitution relating to the appointment, qualification, tenure, or removal or compensation of judges; or relating to the recall of judges or judicial decisions; or relating to the powers, creation or abolition of courts, shall be the subject of such initiative petition.”

Mr. Youngman of Boston then moved that the Convention adjourn; and this motion prevailed.

Adjournment.

Accordingly, at eleven minutes after four o'clock the Convention adjourned, to meet on Thursday next at half-past ten o'clock A.M.

JOURNAL OF THE CONVENTION.

THURSDAY, October 25, 1917.

Met according to adjournment, at half-past ten o'clock A.M.

Prayer was offered by Rev. Harry Lutz of Newton.

Leave of Absence.

On motion of Mr. Flynn of Malden, —

Ordered, That Mr. Hawley of Malden be granted leave of absence, under Rule 13, from October 23 to November 9, inclusive, in order that he may attend to duties in connection with the War Camp Community Recreation Bureau. Truman R. Hawley.

On motion of Mr. McAnarney of Quincy, —

Ordered, That Mr. Langelier of Quincy be granted leave of absence on October 25 and 26, in order that he may attend the Rhode Island State Teachers' Convention, and on November 1 and 2, in order that he may attend the Worcester County Teachers' Convention. Louis F. R. Langelier.

Publication of an Address to the People.

Mr. Luce of Waltham, for the committee on Rules and Procedure (sitting jointly with the committee on Amendment and Codification of the Constitution), who were authorized to report as to the best method of proceeding to revise, alter or amend the Constitution, reported recommending the following address to the people and the adoption of the following order: — Address to the people relative to amendments submitted, — publication.

To the People of Massachusetts: —

The Constitutional Convention assembled by your direction and composed of your delegates has adopted three amendments to the Constitution for submission to you at the coming state election. These amendments have received careful and deliberate consideration; we believe them to be wise and salutary, and we recommend them for your approval.

The first amendment would authorize the Legislature to provide that citizens absent from home on election day might nevertheless exercise the right of suffrage. It is estimated that 20,000 railway men, traveling men, and others now lose their votes through inability to go to the polls. Furthermore, many thousands of young men will be deprived of the ballot while in the military or naval service of their country, unless the Legislature is enabled by this amendment to provide for receiving their votes.

The second amendment guarantees the free exercise of religion; one section especially protects those who may be inmates of penal or charitable institutions. It prevents the appropriation of public money in aid of religious, charitable, benevolent, educational, or other institutions not wholly under public control, but it permits the continuance of payments from the public treasury for the support in private institutions of persons who are public charges, and also allows appropriations for the maintenance of free public libraries and of the Soldiers' Home. Neither in purpose nor in effect is it hostile to religion, education, or philanthropy. In framing this amendment we have merely carried principles that have been developing through our entire history to the point of a broad general policy, — that public money shall be used only for public purposes, for the support of public institutions and no others. We believe this policy to be sound in itself; we know that it is satisfactory to men of very diverse views. The large majority by which the Convention approved this amendment, 275 to 25, and the mutual understanding and good-will developed during its consideration, warrant our confidence that its ratification at the polls will tend to the highest good of the Commonwealth.

The third amendment is meant to remove the restrictions that have stood in the way of using the powers of State and municipality, in a time of emergency like the present, to secure to the people at reasonable cost food and other necessities of life, or to provide shelter if required by such a calamity as a conflagration. As the new powers thus allowed to the Legislature can be used only under the exceptional conditions of urgent necessity or serious distress, their grant to the representatives of the people threatens no permanent invasion of the field of private enterprise, but promises certain forms of temporary relief hitherto precluded.

Before our labors are ended, we undoubtedly shall submit for your approval other important proposals, now maturing; we are confident you will wish us to use all necessary time and care in perfecting them. These three amendments we submit at once, partly because of their pressing nature or other weighty considerations, partly as an earnest of our zeal in the performance of the duty you have imposed on us. We indulge the hope that your approval of these measures and of others to come from us will result in making our Commonwealth still more conspicuous as an example of prudent progress in the development of institutions to promote the safety, happiness, and advancement of mankind, thus setting an example that may encourage and help the peoples now struggling to achieve the ordered liberty we have found so precious.

Ordered, That the Secretary of the Commonwealth be directed to publish the accompanying address to the people at the same time and in such manner as is provided by section 269 of Chapter 835 of the Acts of 1913 for publishing the question of the approval and ratification of proposed amendments to the Constitution.

The reading of the report (Doc. No. 366) was dispensed with, on motion of Mr. Parkman of Boston; and it was considered forthwith.

Mr. Brown of Brockton then moved that the further consideration of the report be postponed until the next session; and after debate this motion was adopted.

Revision of the Rules of the Convention.

The following order, offered by Mr. Besse of Newburyport, the consideration of which was postponed from the last session, was considered.

Ordered, That the committee on Rules and Procedure be instructed to improve, revise, amend or form new rules that will tend to expedite the proceedings of this Convention, said committee to meet during the term of adjournment and to report immediately upon the reconvening of the Convention and this committee be and hereby is instructed to embody in their new set of rules the abolishment of the Committee of the Whole.

Mr. Bennett of Saugus moved that the order be amended by striking out, at the end thereof, the words "and this committee be and hereby is instructed to embody in their new set of rules the abolishment of the Committee of the Whole".

After debate Mr. Besse, there being no objection, accepted this amendment of his order. The order, as thus modified, was then adopted.

Committee on Rules and Procedure, — revision of rules during the recess.

Mr. Bennett, — amendment.

Special Committee to Consider Changes Wrought by the War.

The following order, offered by Mr. Adams of Quincy, the consideration of which was postponed from the last session, was considered: —

Ordered, That, this Convention having voted to adjourn until next spring, previous to its adjournment the President shall appoint a committee of not more than 15 nor less than 12 members, who shall proceed during the recess to consider, so far as time will permit, —

Special recess committee, — changes wrought by the war.

1. The economic, social and legal changes which have been already wrought in our domestic and foreign relations by the present war, together with those of the greatest importance which seem likely soon to supervene;

2. If, by their labors, the committee shall reach the conclusion that, by some comprehensive treatment of the whole of our constitutional law, — not only that which is contained in the Constitution itself, but also that which is to be drawn from the judicial interpretation which the same has received, — it may be possible for said committee to develop some cohesive plan by which the people of this Commonwealth shall be placed in a position to deal more effectively with the increasingly strenuous pressure of modern competition than they otherwise could, then the committee shall report the same to this Convention so soon as it shall reconvene, and the Convention shall forthwith proceed to deliberate upon the same;

3. The committee shall be empowered to ask from the General Court an appropriation sufficient to pay for the necessary expense which the committee shall incur in the performance of its functions.

After debate Mr. Washburn of Middleborough moved that the order be referred to the committee on Rules and Procedure; and this motion, after debate, was negatived, by a vote of 70 to 93.

Mr. Pillsbury of Wellesley moved that the order be amended by striking out the last paragraph thereof. After debate this amendment was adopted.

Mr. Pillsbury, — amendment.

The question was then put on the adoption of the order, as amended, and 83 members voted in the affirmative and 85 in the negative.

The sense of the Convention was then taken by yeas and nays, at the request of Mr. White of North Brookfield; and on the roll call 111 members voted in the affirmative and 131 in the negative as follows: —

111 yeas; 131 nays.

Therefore the order, as amended, was rejected.

Orders of the Day.

The Convention then proceeded to the consideration of the Orders of the Day, Mr. French of Randolph being in the chair.

The Resolution to provide for establishing the initiative and referendum (Doc. No. 359, amended), being the unfinished business of the last session, was considered further, the main question being on ordering it to a second reading.

Initiative and referendum.

Motion to reconsider.

Mr. Harriman of New Bedford moved that the vote be reconsidered by which the Convention, at the last session, adopted the amendment adding, after line 112, the following paragraph: —

“No law or amendment to the constitution relating to the appointment, qualification, tenure, or removal or compensation of judges; or relating to the recall of judges or judicial decisions; or relating to the powers, creation or abolition of courts, shall be the subject of such initiative petition.”

After debate Mr. Pillsbury of Wellesley moved, there being on objection, that the consideration of the motion to reconsider be postponed temporarily; and this motion was adopted.

Mr. Washburn,
— amendment.

After further debate Mr. Washburn of Middleborough moved that the amendment previously moved by Mr. Quincy of Boston be amended, in the third paragraph thereof, by inserting after the word “for”, in line 2, the words “each of the measures or for only one of the measures, as may be provided by law,”.

Quorum.

Mr. Mahoney of Boston doubted the presence of a quorum; and the Chair (Mr. French) requested the Sergeant-at-Arms to secure the attendance of a quorum.

On the appearance of a quorum, and after debate, Mr. Quincy, there being no objection, moved that the further consideration of his pending amendment be postponed until after the consideration of other amendments; and this motion prevailed.

Mr. Balch, —
amendment.

Mr. Balch of Boston then moved that the resolution be amended by adding, at the end thereof, the following paragraph, with the heading “Referendum Board”: —

1. A referendum board is hereby established to consist of as many members as there may from time to time be congressional districts in the commonwealth, one member to be elected from each such district in such manner, and for such term of years not less than ten, as the legislature may from time to time determine, provided that nominations shall be without political designation.

2. No measure, whether originating in an initiative petition or in the legislature, shall be submitted to the people for direct popular vote unless it shall first have been submitted to the said board in such manner and at such time as the legislature may from time to time determine, and unless at least three-quarters of said board shall first have certified in writing substantially as follows:

“We, the undersigned members of the referendum board, certify that we have personally examined carefully and fully into the matter of a measure entitled (here giving the title of the measure) submitted to us as the proposed subject of a popular vote, and without regard to our individual political, racial, religious or economic views or affiliations we express our opinion as follows: —

1. It contains no self-contradictory or inconsistent provisions.

2. It contains nothing contradictory of, or inconsistent with, existing laws which does not clearly appear on its face.

3. It is not contradictory of, or inconsistent with, any other measure which has been submitted to us to be voted on at the same election; or if so contradictory or inconsistent then is capable of being arranged as an alternative measure in the manner hereafter pointed out.

4. It is as clearly and briefly expressed as is reasonably practicable.

5. It is not misleading in its title or phraseology.

6. It and its title are so expressed as not to give unfair advantage to either the affirmative or the negative.

7. It touches only one subject; or subjects so related as not fairly to require separation.

8. It touches a matter which has been publicly discussed, whether in the press or elsewhere, to such an extent, or for such a time, that a popular vote upon it is likely to be reasonably well-informed.

9. It touches a matter of such large and general public interest as renders it probable that not less than two-thirds of the registered voters will act upon it.

10. It contains nothing which requires a special technical education, as distinguished from a good general education, for its understanding; and contains nothing which requires the sifting of bulky and conflicting evidence of technical facts for its decision.

11. (Here the board may, if it sees fit, give brief reasons for any adverse decisions, with or without suggestions for possible improvement or for the arrangement of conflicting measures as alternatives, and the like; the minority of the board, if any, having a like privilege).

At three minutes before one o'clock, on motion of Mr. George of Haverhill, a recess was taken until two o'clock; at which hour the Convention reassembled. Recess.

The President requested the Sergeant-at-Arms to secure the attendance of a quorum. Quorum.

Soon afterward Mr. Hall of Taunton moved that the roll be called, to ascertain if a quorum was present; and this motion prevailed.

The roll was then called, and 185 members answered to their names, as follows: —

On motion of Mr. Granfield of Springfield, —

Reports of committees, — extension of time.

Ordered, That the committees on Amendment and Codification of the Constitution, State Administration, and State Administration and the Executive (sitting jointly) be granted until Tuesday, November 6, in which to report on matters before them.

Attendance of Delegates Equivalent to Court Engagements.

Municipal Court of the City of Boston, — engagement of delegates
Convention.

A communication from Wilfred Bolster, Chief Justice of the Municipal Court of the City of Boston, stating that, in response to the resolution of the Constitutional Convention concerning court engagements of delegates of the Convention, “* * * at their meeting, on October 8, 1917, the justices of this court voted that the attendance of delegates at the Constitutional Convention should be treated as equivalent to court engagements of such delegates. Such has since that date been the practice of this court”, — was read; and it was placed on file.

Vacancy in the Tenth Plymouth Representative District.

The following order, offered by Mr. Brown of Brockton, the consideration of which was postponed from the last session, was considered: —

Ordered, That the committee on Elections consider and report on the question of recommending that William C. Drohan of Brockton, who received the third highest number of votes cast in the primary and at the election of delegates to this Convention from the Tenth Plymouth Representative District, be seated in this Convention to fill the vacancy now existing in said district, provided that the said Drohan does not receive any compensation other than mileage, and such compensation, if any, as may be voted in addition to the salary already paid out on account of the vacant membership in said district.

Vacancy in the Tenth Plymouth Representative District, — William C. Drohan of Brockton.

After debate Mr. Sullivan of Salem moved that the order be amended by the substitution of the following: —

Mr. Sullivan, — amendment.

“Ordered, That the General Court of 1918 be requested to take such action as may be necessary to fill, by special election, any vacancies that may exist in the membership of this Convention on March 15, 1918.”

After further debate, the previous question having been ordered, on motion of Mr. Chandler of Somerville, the amendment was rejected.

The order was then rejected.

Orders of the Day.

The Convention then proceeded to the consideration of the Orders of the Day.

The Resolution to provide for establishing the initiative and referendum (Doc. No. 359, amended), being the unfinished business of the last session, was considered further, the main question being on ordering it to a second reading.

Initiative and referendum.

Mr. Ross of New Bedford moved that, unless a vote be sooner reached, debate be closed at eleven o'clock A.M. on Thursday, November 1, and that a member of the minority and a member of the majority of the committee on Initiative and Referendum each be allowed fifteen minutes at the close. After debate this motion was negatived, by a vote of 65 to 100.

Limit of debate.

Mr. Quincy of Boston withdrew the amendment previously moved by him, there being no objection.

Mr. Luce of Waltham moved that the resolution be amended by adding, after line 109, the following paragraph: —

Mr. Luce, — amendment.

“If, of the measures introduced into the general court by initiative petition in any one year, more than five fail of enactment by the general court, and the petitions relating to more than five are duly completed, the five that received the larger votes of the senate and house of representatives combined, and no more, shall be submitted to the people at the next state election. The measures not so submitted shall be deemed to be introduced into the next session of the general court and pending in the house of representatives."

After debate the question was put on the adoption of the amendment, and 99 members voted in the affirmative and 85 in the negative.

The sense of the Convention was then taken by yeas and nays, at the request of Mr. Walker of Brookline; and on the roll call 109 members voted in the affirmative and 138 in the negative, as follows: —

Order of considering amendments.

After debate the question was put, and 122 members voted in the affirmative and 91 in the negative.

The sense of the Convention was then taken by yeas and nays, at the request of Mr. Ross of New Bedford; and on the roll call 141 members voted in the affirmative and 118 in the negative, as follows: — 84 years; 169 days.

Therefore the amendment was rejected.

Mr. Luce, —
amendment.

Mr. McAnarney of Quincy being in the chair, the question then came on the pending amendment, moved by Mr. Luce of Waltham, adding after line 120 the following paragraph: —

"If of the measures introduced into the general court by initiative petition in any one year, more than five fail of enactment by the general court, and the petitions relating to more than five are duly completed, the five [A] that received the larger votes of the senate and house of representatives combined, and no more, shall be submitted to the people at the next state election. The measures not so submitted shall be deemed to be introduced into the next session of the general court and pending in the house of representatives."

amendment.

After debate Mr. Bates of Boston moved that the amendment be amended by striking out, at "A", the words "that received the larger votes of the senate and house of representatives combined", and inserting in place thereof the words "on the petitions accompanying which appear the larger number of signatures of registered voters".

After further debate the amendment moved by Mr. Bates was rejected; and the amendment moved by Mr. Luce was rejected, by a vote of 76 to 100.

Recess.

At one o'clock, under the provisions of a standing order, the Chair (Mr. McAnarney) declared a recess until two o'clock; at which hour the Convention reassembled.

Proposed
evening session.

Mr. Sawyer of Ware moved that, if the convention is in session at five o'clock P.M., the President shall declare a recess until seven o'clock this evening; and that, if the Convention is in session at nine o'clock P.M., the President shall declare adjournment.

Quorum.

The same member doubted the presence of a quorum; and the Chair (Mr. McAnarney) requested the Sergeant-at-Arms to secure the attendance of a quorum.

Soon afterwards Mr. Edwin U. Curtis of Boston moved that the roll of the Convention be called, to ascertain if a quorum was present; and this motion prevailed.

Therefore it appeared that a quorum was then present.

After debate the foregoing motion of Mr. Sawyer was rejected.

The question next came on the pending amendment, moved by Mr. Luce of Waltham, inserting after line 143 a new paragraph.

Mr. Quincy, —
 amendment.

After debate Mr. Quincy of Boston moved that the amendment be amended by substituting, for the words proposed to be inserted, the following paragraphs: —

“The provisions of a constitutional amendment approved at any election shall apply to any law approved at the same election in the same manner as if such amendment had been in force prior to such election.

“The general court by resolve passed as aforesaid may provide for grouping and designating upon the ballot either as conflicting measures or as alternative measures, only one of which is to be adopted, any two or more proposed constitutional amendments, or any two or more proposed laws, which have been or may be passed or qualified for submission to the people at any one election, under the provisions of this amendment or otherwise: provided, that a proposed constitutional amendment and a proposed law shall not in any case be so grouped, and that the ballot shall afford an opportunity to the voter to vote for each of the measures or for only one of the measures, as may be provided in said resolve, or against each of the measures so grouped as conflicting or as alternatives. In case more than one of the measures so grouped shall receive the vote required for its approval as herein provided, only that one of the same for which the largest affirmative vote was cast shall be deemed to be approved."

After further debate the amendment moved by Mr. Quincy was adopted, by a vote of 106 to 64; and the amendment of Mr. Luce, as thus amended, was adopted.

Mr. Dennis D. Driscoll of Boston then moved that the resolution be amended by striking out, in lines 199 and 200, and in lines 289, 290 and 291, the words "and no law relating to religion, religious practices or religious institutions,". Mr. Driscoll, — amendments.

The question next came on the pending amendment, moved by Mr. Luce of Waltham, inserting after the word "commonwealth", in line 198, the words ", or to an individual, association, or corporation". Mr. Luce, —
amendment.

After debate the question was put, and 112 members voted in the affirmative and 99 in the negative.

The sense of the Convention was then taken by yeas and nays, at the request of Mr. Walker of Brookline; and on the roll call 124 members voted in the affirmative and 132 in the negative, as follows: —

Mr. O'Connell,
— amendment.

“No law or amendment to the constitution relating to the appointment, qualification, tenure, or removal or compensation of judges; or relating to the recall of judges or judicial decisions; or relating to the powers, creation or abolition of courts, shall be the subject of such initiative petition.”

Mr. Bennett of Saugus then moved that the vote be reconsidered by which the foregoing amendment of line 198, moved by Mr. Luce, was rejected.

Motion to reconsider.

Mr. Underhill of Somerville moved that the Convention adjourn; and this motion was adopted, by a vote of 104 to 68.

Accordingly, at two minutes before four o'clock (Mr. McAnarney of Quincy being in the chair), the Convention adjourned, to meet to-morrow at half-past ten o'clock A.M.

JOURNAL OF THE CONVENTION.

FRIDAY, November 9, 1917.

Met according to adjournment, at half-past ten o'clock A.M.

Prayer was offered by Rev. John L. Kilbon of Springfield, a member of the Convention.

Leave of Absence.

On motion of Mr. Buttrick of Lancaster, —

Voted, That Mr. Besse of Newburyport be granted leave of absence, under Rule 13, on account of illness. Harold A. Besse.

Orders of the Day.

The Convention then proceeded to the consideration of the Orders of the Day.

The Resolution to provide for establishing the popular initiative and referendum (Doc. No. 367), being the unfinished business of the last session, was considered further, the main question being on ordering it to a third reading. Initiative and referendum.

Mr. Bennett of Saugus asked unanimous consent to withdraw his pending motion that the vote be reconsidered by which the Convention, at the last session, rejected the amendment inserting after the word "commonwealth", in line 198, the words ", or to an individual, association, or corporation". Motion to reconsider.

Objection was made by Mr. Luce of Waltham.

Mr. Bennett then asked for a count of the Convention to ascertain if a quorum was present. A count showed that 161 members were present. Quorum.

After debate the question was put on the motion to reconsider, and 110 members voted in the affirmative and 99 in the negative. Motion to reconsider.

Therefore the amendments were rejected.

At one o'clock, under the provisions of a standing order, the President declared a recess until two o'clock; at which hour the Convention reassembled. Recess.

145 yeas; 128 nays.

Therefore the amendment was adopted, as follows: Inserting after line 78 the following paragraph: —

“No part of the constitution specifically excluding any matter from the operation of the popular initiative and referendum shall be the subject of an initiative petition.”

Mr. Kinney of Boston then moved that the Convention adjourn; and this motion prevailed.

Accordingly, at five minutes before four o'clock, the Convention adjourned, to meet to-morrow at half-past ten o'clock A.M.

Adjournment.

JOURNAL OF THE CONVENTION.

WEDNESDAY, November 14, 1917.

Met according to adjournment, at half-past ten o'clock A.M.

Prayer was offered by Rev. John L. Kilbon of Springfield, a member of the Convention.

Leave of Absence.

On motion of Mr. Creed of Boston, —

Ordered, That Mr. Washburn of Middleborough be granted leave of absence, under Rule 13, until Tuesday, November 20, on account of important engagements outside of the Commonwealth. Albert H. Washburn.

On motion of Mr. Twomey of Lawrence, —

Ordered, That Mr. Sullivan of Lawrence be granted leave of absence from the morning session to-day, in order that he may attend a funeral service. Michael A. Sullivan.

Convention Procedure.

Mr. Kilbon of Springfield offered the following order: —

Ordered, That, after completion of the votes now pending on the passage to a third reading of the Resolution to provide for establishing the popular initiative and referendum, the Convention go into Committee of the Whole for the consideration of such matters upon its Docket as are the subject of unanimous adverse reports from the committees to which they were referred: provided, that, whenever the committee on Form and Phraseology shall report to the Convention the Resolution to provide for establishing the popular initiative and referendum, the question on passing that resolution to be engrossed shall have precedence over all other questions in regular order, so far as not inconsistent with the rules of the Convention. Method of procedure.

After debate the further consideration of the order was postponed until the next session, at the request of Mr. Feiker of Northampton.

Approval of Bills of the Convention.

On motion of Mr. Luce of Waltham, —

Ordered, That the committee on Rules and Procedure be authorized to designate some member of said committee to approve, during the recess of the Convention, bills for editing the stenographic report of the proceedings of the Convention and of the Committee of the Whole, or other bills relating to the work of the Convention. Committee on Rules and Procedure, — approval of bills of the Convention.

Discharged from the Orders of the Day.

Expenses of the Convention, — additional appropriation from the General Court.

On motion of Mr. Sullivan of Salem the motion that the committee on Rules and Procedure and the committee on Contingent Expenses and Pay-Roll, [A] sitting jointly, be instructed to take necessary steps to secure from the General Court of 1918 a sufficient appropriation to cover the deficits already accrued at this session, and the estimated expenses of the sessions of the Convention to be held in 1918 [B], the appropriation also to include a sufficient sum to be paid as compensation to the delegates at the rate of $150 per month during 1918, and also including compensation to be paid the delegates for November, 1917, at the same rate of $150 per month, together with the proper travelling or mileage expenses for the 1918 session [C]; but the total of the monthly compensation not to exceed $750 to each delegate for ordinary services rendered after November 1, 1917, — was discharged from the Orders of the Day, under Rule 39, and considered.

Mr. Sullivan, — amendment.

The same member moved that the motion be amended by striking out, at "A", the words "sitting jointly, be instructed to take necessary steps to secure", and inserting in place thereof the words "acting jointly, be requested to inquire into the matter of securing".

Mr. Cook, — amendment.

Mr. Cook of Northampton moved that the motion be amended by striking out all after the word "session", at "C".

Mr. Brown, — amendment.

Mr. Brown of Brockton moved that the motion be amended by striking out all after the date "1918", at "B".

After debate Mr. Delaney of Holyoke moved the previous question; and this motion, after further debate, was adopted.

The amendment moved by Mr. Sullivan was then adopted; and the amendment moved by Mr. Brown was adopted, by a vote of 104 to 27. The amendment moved by Mr. Cook was thus eliminated.

The motion, as amended, was then adopted, by a vote of 99 to 73.

Orders of the Day.

The Convention then proceeded to the consideration of the Orders of the Day.

Initiative and referendum.

The Resolution to provide for establishing the popular initiative and referendum (Doc. No. 367, amended), being the unfinished business of the last session, was considered further, the main question being on ordering it to a third reading.

Mr. Burns, — amendment.

The question first came on the pending amendment moved by Mr. Burns of Pittsfield; and it was adopted, as follows: — Adding after the word "repealed", in line 286, the words ": provided, that no such law shall be held to be disapproved if the negative vote is less than thirty per cent of the highest number of votes cast at such state election".

Mr. Swig, — amendment.

The question then came on the following pending amendment, moved by Mr. Swig of Taunton: Adding after line 74 the following paragraph: —

"Provided, however, that no amendment to the constitution relating to religion, religious practices or religious institutions shall be the subject of an initiative petition."

The sense of the Convention was taken by yeas and nays, at the request of Mr. Dennis D. Driscoll of Boston; and on the roll call 184 members voted in the affirmative and 89 in the negative, as follows:—

Address to the people.

The report of the committees on Rules and Procedure and Amendment and Codification of the Constitution, sitting jointly, submitting an address to the people with reference to the work of the Convention, and an order relative to the publication thereof (see Doc. No. 366), was then considered; and it was rejected.

Compensation of porters.

The following order was then considered: —

Ordered, That such porters [A] as the Sergeant-at-Arms shall certify have been in attendance in the employ of the Commonwealth in and about the rooms and corridors occupied by the Convention and its committees, or members thereof, since the Convention has been in session, be paid the sum of fifty dollars each as extra compensation by reason of the holding of said Convention.

Mr. Twomey,
— amendment.

Pending the question on the adoption of the amendment previously moved by Mr. Underhill of Somerville (inserting after the word "porters", at "A", the words "and watchmen"), Mr. Twomey of Lawrence moved that the order be amended by also inserting, at "A", the words "and scrubwomen".

Mr. Curtis of Revere then moved that the order and pending amendments be recommitted to the committee on Contingent Expenses and Pay-Roll; and this motion prevailed.

Taken from the Table.

Necessaries of life, — acquirement,
sale and
distribution.

On motion of Mr. Balch of Boston the following resolution, presented by him on October 11, was taken from the table: —

Resolved, That it is the sense of this Convention that the article of amendment authorizing the enactment of laws governing the acquirement, sale and distribution of the necessaries of life, was intended for emergency use only, to wit, in abnormal times or circumstances; and that it was intended the Legislature should be the sole judge of the existence of such times or circumstances.

Mr. Balch then withdrew the resolution, there being no objection.

Reduction in Fares to Camp Devens.

Reduction of fares to Camp
Devens at Ayer.

Mr. Coughlan of Boston presented the following resolution: —

Whereas, A movement has been instituted for the purpose of securing a reduction in the train fare for the men detailed at Camp Devens; and

Whereas, The opportunities of the men of the national army at Ayer of visiting their families and friends are very much limited by reason of the train fare being entirely out of proportion to their financial means; and

Whereas, The affording of an opportunity for the men at Camp Devens, under reasonable conditions, to visit their homes is a public duty which "public utilities" should recognize; and

Whereas, Such an opportunity operates as an incentive for strict adherence to military duties; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the Constitutional Convention of The Commonwealth of Massachusetts hereby places itself on record in favor of a reasonable reduction in the rate of fare on the Boston and Maine Railroad for the trip to and from Camp Devens on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays for the benefit of the soldiers, their families and the general public.

The same member moved a suspension of Rule 36, that the resolution might be considered; and this motion was negatived.

By inserting after line 59 the following paragraphs: —

"The signatures to initiative petitions hereby required, with the exception of the first ten signers, shall be made and filed as follows: The secretary of the commonwealth shall print individual signature cards upon which any registered voter receiving the same as herein provided, may make his signature, followed by his address as it appears upon the voting list, in favor of any initiative petition which he desires to support. Each such card shall identify by number or otherwise the initiative petition for which the signature is to be given, shall bear the seal of the commonwealth printed thereon, or other identifying mark, and shall be used only for official transmission by mail as herein provided. Any registered voter may sign one such signature card in favor of each initiative petition which he desires to support, but each signature card shall only be signed by one voter and for one petition.

"The secretary of the commonwealth shall procure and keep on file the latest printed copies of the voting lists of all cities and towns, and he shall at the request of any original signer of an initiative petition duly filed cause one of such signature cards to be mailed to any list or lists of voters which may from time to time be specified or furnished by any such signer, provided that all expenses connected with such mailing, other than the expense of printing such signature cards, shall be deposited in advance. A copy of the full text of such initiative measure shall be printed by the secretary of the commonwealth and enclosed with each signature card, together with any printed argument in support of the same, and any addressed return envelopes which may be furnished him for mailing therewith. Provision may be made by law to regulate the length of any such argument and for allowing opponents of such initiative measure an opportunity by depositing one-half of the expense of mailing as aforesaid, to have printed arguments in opposition to such measure enclosed with such signature cards. Instead of mailing such cards the secretary of the commonwealth shall, at the request of any such original signer, furnish and send to any clerk of a city or town a sufficient number of signature cards for the registered voters of such city or town, and such clerk shall thereupon have the same duty in respect to the mailing of such signature cards and other printed matter as herein provided in respect to said secretary.

“As an additional method of giving his signature and support to any initiative petition, any registered voter may express in his own handwriting upon an individual paper or printed card signed by him, and witnessed, with his address as aforesaid, his desire to sign in favor of any one initiative petition designated therein by number or other sufficient description, and such paper or card when received by the clerk of the city or town in which such voter is registered as a voter shall constitute a signature to such petition; and any such voter may sign one such individual paper or card in favor of each initiative petition which he desires to support.

“In addition to the two methods of signing initiative petitions above provided, any registered voter may give his signature therefor in the presence of the clerk of the city or town in which he is a registered voter, or of any assistant in his office, and the secretary of the commonwealth shall furnish to every city or town clerk an official blank for such signatures.

“Any such official signature card or unofficial paper or card when executed as herein provided may be delivered by mail or otherwise either to the secretary of the commonwealth or to the clerk of the city or town in which the signer of the same is a registered voter, and when so received shall be open for public inspection. If the name and residence signed to any such card or paper corresponds to the name and residence of a registered voter, and if such card or paper appears to be executed as herein required, the same shall be placed on file, otherwise it shall be rejected. If the officer with whom such card or paper is filed believes, from evidence offered to him, that there is substantial reason to doubt the genuineness of the signature to any such card or paper, he may reject the same unless satisfactory evidence to establish such genuineness is furnished. The name of each signer of any such card or paper or blank shall be checked on the voting list so that the same voter shall not be counted more than once in support of any one petition.

“On the first Wednesday of December each city or town clerk with whom any such official signature cards or any such unofficial papers or cards have been filed, or who has in his office any of the petition blanks furnished as aforesaid with signatures of voters thereon, shall transmit all of the same to the secretary of the commonwealth, who shall proceed to examine the same and count all signatures which appear to be in conformity herewith, and if the number of such signatures to any petition, together with the number of signatures thereto filed directly with the secretary of the commonwealth, equals the number of signatures required to complete such petition as herein provided, then such petition shall be transmitted to the general court as hereinafter provided.

"Until otherwise provided by law all provisions of existing law relating to the signatures to nomination papers for the nomination of candidates for state officers shall apply so far as applicable to the forgery of signatures to the official signature cards and to the unofficial papers or cards herein referred to."

The motion of Mr. Sawyer, as amended, was then adopted, by a vote of 85 to 68.

Order of

Mr. Thompson of Haverhill moved that motions to amend the pending resolution by the substitution of new resolutions be acted upon before particular amendments.

After debate on this motion the question was put, and 58 members voted in the affirmative and 90 in the negative.

Special recess committee on economic, industrial and military problems.

Ordered, That this Convention appoint its President to serve during the approaching recess as chairman of a committee whose duty it shall be to consider, and to report upon to this Convention when it shall reconvene, those economic, industrial and military problems which are being evolved here and elsewhere by the present war, and problems which, in their judgment, directly concern the future development of this country and this Commonwealth; and be it further

Orders of the Day.

The Convention then proceeded to the consideration of the Orders of the Day.

The Resolution to provide for establishing the popular initiative and referendum (Doc. No. 369), being the unfinished business of the last session, was considered further, the main question being on passing it to be engrossed.

Initiative and referendum.

The pending motion of Mr. Thompson of Haverhill, that motions to amend by the substitution of resolutions be acted upon before particular amendments, was withdrawn by that member, there being no objection.

Order of amendments.

Mr. Adams, —
amendments.

Mr. Adams moved that the second amendment be amended by adding at the end thereof the following additional paragraphs: —

"If at any time hereafter any specific and particular amendment or amendments to the constitution be proposed in the general court and agreed to by a majority of the senators and representatives, such proposed amendment or amendments shall be entered on the journals of the two houses, with the yeas and nays taken thereon, and shall be published; then it shall be the duty of the general court to submit such proposed amendment or amendments to the people; and if they shall be approved and ratified by a majority of the qualified voters voting at meetings legally warned and holden for that purpose, they shall become part of the constitution of this commonwealth.

"The ninth article of amendment to the constitution is hereby repealed."

Point of order.

129 yeas; 150 nays.

Therefore the amendment was rejected.

Mr. Lowell of Newton then withdrew the pending amendment moved by him, there being no objection. Mr. Lowell, — amendment.

The question then came on the following pending amendment, moved by Mr. Edwin U. Curtis of Boston: That the resolution recommended as a substitute by the committee on Form and Phraseology be amended by inserting, after line 30, the following paragraph: — Mr. Curtis, — amendment.

“The eighteenth amendment of the constitution, as approved and ratified to take effect the first day of October in the year nineteen hundred and eighteen, shall not be the subject of an initiative amendment.”

Mr. French of Randolph moved that the amendment be amended by striking out the paragraph proposed to be inserted, and inserting in place thereof the following: — Mr. French, — amendment.

“Neither the eighteenth amendment of the constitution, as approved and ratified to take effect on the first day of October in the year nineteen hundred and eighteen, nor this provision for its protection, shall be the subject of an initiative amendment.”

After debate Mr. Curtis accepted this amendment as a part of his amendment, there being no objection.

The question was then put on the adoption of the amendment moved by Mr. Curtis, as thus modified, and 129 members voted in the affirmative and 74 in the negative.

The sense of the Convention was then taken by yeas and nays, at the request of Mr. Dennis D. Driscoll of Boston; and on the roll call 175 members voted in the affirmative and 106 in the negative: — order.

Point of

Mr. Richardson of Newton raised the point of order that the amendment was not properly before the Convention, being essentially the same as an amendment previously adopted.

The President declared the point of order well taken.

After debate the question was put, and 106 members voted in the affirmative and 91 in the negative.

The sense of the Convention was then taken by yeas and nays, at the request of Mr. Walker of Brookline; and on the roll call 123 members voted in the affirmative and 141 in the negative, as follows: —

Therefore the amendment was rejected.

Mr. Bennett of Saugus moved that the Convention adjourn; and this motion was negatived, by a vote of 73 to 82.

The question then came on the following pending amendment, moved by Mr. Harriman of New Bedford: That the resolution recommended as a substitute by the committee on Form and Phraseology be amended by striking out lines 28, 29 and 30 (as amended).

After debate, and without action on the amendment, Mr. O'Connell of Boston moved that the Convention adjourn; and this motion prevailed.

Accordingly, at six minutes before five o'clock, the Convention adjourned, to meet to-morrow at half-past ten o'clock, A.M.

JOURNAL OF THE CONVENTION.

FRIDAY, November 23, 1917.

Met according to adjournment, at half-past ten o'clock A.M.

Prayer was offered by Rev. Archey D. Ball of Malden.

Special Communication.

A communication from Delegate George W. Anderson of Brookline, addressed to the President of the Convention and dated November 21, was read, as follows: —

Delegate
George W.
Anderson of Brookline, — special
cation.

"It seems to me fitting that I should ask that the records of the Convention show that my absence from roll calls for the past six weeks has not been from inattention to public duty. As you know, I was, contrary to my own desire, appointed upon the Interstate Commerce Commission and had to assume the duties of that office on October 15th. It is also known to you that matters of vital importance due to war conditions were pending before that Commission, calling for immediate and absorbing attention. It seemed to me a matter of plain public duty to accept this appointment, and also to devote myself to matters then pending. My absence has therefore been compulsory.

"But while unable to listen to or participate in the discussions, I have arranged to offset my vote with delegates holding different views who are also constrained to be absent in the performance of other public duties.

"I ask that this letter may be either inserted in the records or that you will take such other course as seems to you proper under the circumstances."

The communication was placed on file.

Leave of Absence.

On motion of Mr. Adams of Springfield, —

Ordered, That Mr. Brown of Springfield be granted leave of absence for the current week, under Rule 13, because of illness.

Samuel F.
Brown.

Special Committee to Consider Economic, Industrial and Military Problems.

The following order, offered by Mr. Adams of Quincy, the consideration of which was postponed from the last session, was laid on the table, on motion of that member: —

Special recess committee on economic, industrial and military problems.

Ordered, That this Convention appoint its President to serve during the approaching recess as chairman of a committee whose duty it shall be to consider, and to report upon to this Convention when it shall reconvene, those economic, industrial and military problems which are being evolved here and elsewhere by the present war, and problems which, in their judgment,

142 yeas; 134 nays.

Therefore the amendment was adopted.

Mr. Knotts, —
 amendment.

The first pending amendment moved by Mr. Knotts of Somerville (that the resolution recommended as a substitute by the committee on Form and Phraseology be amended by inserting, after line 59, certain paragraphs) was withdrawn by that member, there being no objection.

Mr. Quincy, —
 amendments.

The question then came on certain pending amendments moved by Mr. Quincy of Boston. The same member moved certain amendments of the amendments.

Recess.

After debate Mr. O'Connell of Boston moved that the Convention take a recess until two o'clock; and this motion was adopted, by a vote of 141 to 37.

Accordingly, at five minutes before one o'clock, a recess was taken until two o'clock; at which hour the Convention reassembled.

Quorum.

Mr. Quincy of Boston doubted the presence of a quorum; and the President requested the Sergeant-at-Arms to secure the attendance of a quorum.

On the appearance of a quorum Mr. Quincy asked unanimous consent that the time for debate on his pending amendments be extended fifteen minutes. Objection was made by Mr. Reidy of Boston.

Mr. Quincy, —
 amendments.

Mr. Quincy was then given unanimous consent to modify his pending amendments, so as to read as follows: That the resolution recommended as a substitute by the committee on Form and Phraseology be amended as follows: —

By inserting in line 48, after the word "shall", the words "give the petition a number and shall";

By striking out, in lines 60, 61 and 62, the words "If an initiative petition, signed by the required number of qualified voters, has been filed as aforesaid", and inserting in place thereof the words "If the required number of signatures to an initiative petition has been filed with the secretary of the commonwealth as herein provided";

By inserting after line 59 the following paragraphs: —

"The signatures to initiative petitions hereby required, with the exception of the first ten signers, shall be made and filed as follows: The secretary of the commonwealth shall print individual signature cards upon which any registered voter receiving the same as herein provided may personally make his signature, followed by his address as it appears upon the voting list, in favor of any initiative petition which he desires to support. Each such card shall identify by number or otherwise the initiative petition for which the signature is to be given, shall bear the seal of the commonwealth printed thereon, or other identifying mark, and shall be used only for official transmission by mail as herein provided. Any registered voter may sign one such signature card in favor of each initiative petition which he desires to support, but each signature card shall only be signed by one voter and for one petition.

"The secretary of the commonwealth shall procure and keep on file the latest printed copies of the voting lists of all cities and towns, and he shall at the request of any original signer of an initiative petition duly filed cause one of such signature cards to be mailed to any list or lists of voters which may from time to time be specified or furnished by any such signer, provided that all expenses connected with such mailing, other than the expense of printing such signature cards and such initiative measure, shall be deposited in advance. A copy of the full text of such initiative measure shall be printed by the secretary of the commonwealth and enclosed with each signature card, together with any printed argument in support of the same, and any addressed return envelopes which may be furnished him for mailing therewith. Provision shall be made by law to regulate the length of any such argument and for allowing opponents of such initiative measure an opportunity, by depositing one-half of the expense of mailing as aforesaid, exclusive of the expense of furnishing such addressed return envelopes, to have printed arguments in opposition to such measure enclosed with such signature cards. Instead of mailing such cards the secretary of the commonwealth shall, at the request of any such original signer, furnish and send to any clerk of a city or town a sufficient number of signature cards for the registered voters of such city or town, and such clerk shall, upon the deposit of the expenses aforesaid, thereupon have the same duty in respect to the mailing of such signature cards and other printed matter as herein provided in respect to said secretary.

amendments.

"As an additional method of giving his signature and support to any initiative petition, any registered voter may express in his own handwriting upon a paper or card personally signed by him, with his address as aforesaid and bearing the signature and address of a witness, his desire to sign in favor of any one initiative petition designated therein by number or other sufficient description, and such paper or card when received by the clerk of the city or town in which such voter is registered as a voter shall constitute a signature to such petition; and any such voter may sign one such paper or card in favor of each initiative petition which he desires to support.

"In addition to the two methods of signing initiative petitions above provided, any registered voter may give his signature therefor in the presence of the clerk of the city or town in which 142 yeas; 134 nays.

Therefore the amendment was adopted.

Mr. Knotts, —
 amendment.

The first pending amendment moved by Mr. Knotts of Somerville (that the resolution recommended as a substitute by the committee on Form and Phraseology be amended by inserting, after line 59, certain paragraphs) was withdrawn by that member, there being no objection.

Mr. Quincy, —
 amendments.

The question then came on certain pending amendments moved by Mr. Quincy of Boston. The same member moved certain amendments of the amendments.

Recess.

After debate Mr. O'Connell of Boston moved that the Convention take a recess until two o'clock; and this motion was adopted, by a vote of 141 to 37.

Accordingly, at five minutes before one o'clock, a recess was taken until two o'clock; at which hour the Convention reassembled.

Quorum.

Mr. Quincy of Boston doubted the presence of a quorum; and the President requested the Sergeant-at-Arms to secure the attendance of a quorum.

On the appearance of a quorum Mr. Quincy asked unanimous consent that the time for debate on his pending amendments be extended fifteen minutes. Objection was made by Mr. Reidy of Boston.

Mr. Quincy, —
 amendments.

Mr. Quincy was then given unanimous consent to modify his pending amendments, so as to read as follows: That the resolution recommended as a substitute by the committee on Form and Phraseology be amended as follows: —

By inserting in line 48, after the word "shall", the words "give the petition a number and shall";

By striking out, in lines 60, 61 and 62, the words "If an initiative petition, signed by the required number of qualified voters, has been filed as aforesaid", and inserting in place thereof the words "If the required number of signatures to an initiative petition has been filed with the secretary of the commonwealth as herein provided";

By inserting after line 59 the following paragraphs: —

"The signatures to initiative petitions hereby required, with the exception of the first ten signers, shall be made and filed as follows: The secretary of the commonwealth shall print individual signature cards upon which any registered voter receiving the same as herein provided may personally make his signature, followed by his address as it appears upon the voting list, in favor of any initiative petition which he desires to support. Each such card shall identify by number or otherwise the initiative petition for which the signature is to be given, shall bear the seal of the commonwealth printed thereon, or other identifying mark, and shall be used only for official transmission by mail as herein provided. Any registered voter may sign one such signature card in favor of each initiative petition which he desires to support, but each signature card shall only be signed by one voter and for one petition.

"The secretary of the commonwealth shall procure and keep on file the latest printed copies of the voting lists of all cities and towns, and he shall at the request of any original signer of an initiative petition duly filed cause one of such signature cards to be mailed to any list or lists of voters which may from time to time be specified or furnished by any such signer, provided that all expenses connected with such mailing, other than the expense of printing such signature cards and such initiative measure, shall be deposited in advance. A copy of the full text of such initiative measure shall be printed by the secretary of the commonwealth and enclosed with each signature card, together with any printed argument in support of the same, and any addressed return envelopes which may be furnished him for mailing therewith. Provision shall be made by law to regulate the length of any such argument and for allowing opponents of such initiative measure an opportunity, by depositing one-half of the expense of mailing as aforesaid, exclusive of the expense of furnishing such addressed return envelopes, to have printed arguments in opposition to such measure enclosed with such signature cards. Instead of mailing such cards the secretary of the commonwealth shall, at the request of any such original signer, furnish and send to any clerk of a city or town a sufficient number of signature cards for the registered voters of such city or town, and such clerk shall, upon the deposit of the expenses aforesaid, thereupon have the same duty in respect to the mailing of such signature cards and other printed matter as herein provided in respect to said secretary.

amendments.

"As an additional method of giving his signature and support to any initiative petition, any registered voter may express in his own handwriting upon a paper or card personally signed by him, with his address as aforesaid and bearing the signature and address of a witness, his desire to sign in favor of any one initiative petition designated therein by number or other sufficient description, and such paper or card when received by the clerk of the city or town in which such voter is registered as a voter shall constitute a signature to such petition; and any such voter may sign one such paper or card in favor of each initiative petition which he desires to support.

"In addition to the two methods of signing initiative petitions above provided, any registered voter may give his signature therefor in the presence of the clerk of the city or town in which he is a registered voter, or of any assistant in his office, and the secretary of the commonwealth shall furnish to every city or town clerk an official blank for such signatures.

Mr. Quincy.—
Amendments.

“Any such official signature card or unofficial paper or card when executed as herein provided may be delivered by mail or otherwise either to the secretary of the commonwealth or to the clerk of the city or town in which the signer of the same is a registered voter, and when so received shall be open for public inspection. If the name and residence signed to any such card or paper corresponds to the name and residence of a registered voter, and if such card or paper appears to be executed as herein required, the same shall be placed on file, otherwise it shall be rejected. If the officer with whom such card or paper is filed believes, from evidence offered to him, that there is substantial reason to doubt the genuineness of the signature to any such card or paper, he may reject the same unless satisfactory evidence to establish such genuineness is furnished. The name of each signer of any such card or paper or blank shall be checked on the voting list so that the same voter shall not be counted more than once in support of any one petition.

“When the time for filing signatures as fixed herein shall expire, each city or town clerk with whom any such official signature cards or any such unofficial papers or cards have been filed, or who has in his office any of the petition blanks furnished as aforesaid with signatures of voters thereon, shall transmit all of the same to the secretary of the commonwealth, who shall proceed to examine the same and count all signatures which appear to be in conformity herewith, and if the number of such signatures to any petition, together with the number of signatures thereto filed directly with the secretary of the commonwealth, equals the number of signatures required to complete such petition as herein provided, then such petition shall be transmitted to the general court or submitted to the people, as the case may be, as hereinafter provided.”;

By striking out, in lines 112, 113 and 114, the words “in any manner not inconsistent with its general purpose by vote of three-fourths of the members voting thereon in joint session”, and inserting in place thereof the words “by vote of three-fourths of the members voting thereon in joint session, which shall be taken by yeas and nays unless dispensed with by unanimous consent”;

By striking out lines 152 to 158, inclusive, and inserting in place thereof the words “is completed by filing after the first Wednesday in June aforesaid, and before the first Wednesday of the following August, not less than five thousand signatures of qualified voters, in addition to those filed before the introduction of such initiative petition, which signatures must have been obtained after the first Wednesday of June aforesaid, then”;

By striking out lines 184 to 190, inclusive, and inserting in place thereof the words “by filing after the first Wednesday in June aforesaid, and before the first Wednesday of the following August, not less than five thousand signatures of qualified voters, in addition to those filed before the introduction of such initiative petition, which signatures must have been obtained after the first Wednesday of June aforesaid, then the"; and

By striking out lines 168 to 192, inclusive, and inserting in place thereof the following paragraph: — Mr. Quincy, —
amendments.

"The general court may, upon petition signed by a majority of the first ten signers of an initiative petition for a law, make any amendment or amendments therein, by vote taken by the yeas and nays, which are specifically asked for in such petition, and such proposed law shall then be voted upon by the general court, and submitted to the people if qualified for submission as herein provided, in such amended form."

Mr. Quincy then moved that the further consideration of his amendments, except the amendment of lines 112, 113 and 114, be postponed until action had been taken on all other amendments, except amendments proposing substitute resolutions.

Mr. Sawyer of Ware raised the point of order that the motion to postpone could not properly be entertained, for the reason that it is not in order to postpone the consideration of a subsidiary question. Point of order.

The President stated that, if the motion to postpone had been to a day certain, or had otherwise separated the subsidiary question from the main question, it would not have been in order; but that the motion only contemplated changing the order for the consideration of amendments. He therefore declared the point of order not well taken.

After debate the motion to postpone was adopted, by a vote of 127 to 57.

The question then came on the following pending amendment, moved by Mr. Bates of Boston: That the resolution recommended as a substitute by the committee on Form and Phraseology be amended by inserting, after line 85, the following paragraph: — Mr. Bates, —
amendment.

"If, of the measures introduced into the general court by initiative petition in any one year, more than five fail of enactment by the general court, and the petitions relating to more than five are duly completed, the five on the petitions accompanying which appear the largest number of signatures of registered voters, and no more, shall be submitted to the people at the next state election. The measures not so submitted shall be deemed to be introduced into the next session of the general court and pending in the house of representatives."

After debate the question was put, and 97 members voted in the affirmative and 97 in the negative.

The sense of the Convention was then taken by yeas and nays, at the request of Mr. Luce of Waltham; and on the roll call 106 members voted in the affirmative and 153 in the negative, as follows: —

Therefore the amendment was rejected.

Motion to reconsider.

Mr. George of Haverhill then moved that the vote be reconsidered by which the Convention, previous to the recess, rejected the following amendment: That the resolution recommended as a substitute by the committee on Form and Phraseology be amended by striking out, in lines 55 and 56, the words "first Wednesday of the September", and inserting in place thereof the words "second Wednesday of the November".

Point of
order.

Mr. Walker of Brookline raised the point of order, that the motion to reconsider could not properly be entertained, for the reason that business had intervened since the rejection of the amendment.

The President stated that a motion to reconsider a vote on a subsidiary question was in order at any time when the main question was before the Convention, and therefore declared the point of order not well taken.

Id.

Mr. George proceeded to debate the motion to reconsider, whereupon Mr. William H. Sullivan of Boston raised the point of order that, general debate having been closed by vote of the Convention, the motion to reconsider was not debatable.

The President referred to Rule 48, which provided that "on a motion to reconsider a vote upon any collateral matter debate shall be limited to ten minutes", and declared the point of order not well taken.

After debate on the motion to reconsider, the question was put, and 94 members voted in the affirmative and 109 in the negative.

The sense of the Convention was then taken by yeas and nays, at the request of Mr. George; and on the roll call 121 members voted in the affirmative and 142 in the negative, as follows: —

By inserting after line 59 the following paragraphs: —

"The signatures to initiative petitions hereby required, with the exception of the first ten signers, shall be made and filed as follows: The secretary of the commonwealth shall print individual signature cards upon which any registered voter receiving the same as herein provided may personally make his signature, followed by his address as it appears upon the voting list, in favor of any initiative petition which he desires to support. Each such card shall identify by number or otherwise the initiative petition for which the signature is to be given, shall bear the seal of the commonwealth printed thereon, or other identifying mark, and shall be used only for official transmission by mail as herein provided. Any registered voter may sign one such signature card in favor of each initiative petition which he desires to support, but each signature card shall only be signed by one voter and for one petition.

"The secretary of the commonwealth shall procure and keep on file the latest printed copies of the voting lists of all cities and towns, and he shall at the request of any original signer of an initiative petition duly filed cause one of such signature cards to be mailed to any list or lists of voters which may from time to time be specified or furnished by any such signer, provided that all expenses connected with such mailing, other than the expense of printing such signature cards and such initiative measure, shall be deposited in advance. A copy of the full text of such initiative measure shall be printed by the secretary of the commonwealth and enclosed with each signature card, together with any printed argument in support of the same, and any addressed return envelopes which may be furnished him for mailing therewith. Provision shall be made by law to regulate the length of any such argument and for allowing opponents of such initiative measure an opportunity, by depositing one-half of the expense of mailing as aforesaid, exclusive of the expense of furnishing such addressed return envelopes, to have printed arguments in opposition to such measure enclosed with such signature cards. Instead of mailing such cards the secretary of the commonwealth shall, at the request of any such original signer, furnish and send to any clerk of a city or town a sufficient number of signature cards for the registered voters of such city or town, and such clerk shall, upon the deposit of the expenses aforesaid, thereupon have the same duty in respect to the mailing of such signature cards and other printed matter as herein provided in respect to said secretary.

"As an additional method of giving his signature and support to any initiative petition, any registered voter may express in his own handwriting upon a paper or card personally signed by him, with his address as aforesaid, and bearing the signature and address of a witness, his desire to sign in favor of any one initiative petition designated therein by number or other sufficient description, and such paper or card when received by the clerk of the city or town in which such voter is registered as a voter shall constitute a signature to such petition; and any such voter may sign one such paper or card in favor of each initiative petition which he desires to support.

amendments.

"In addition to the two methods of signing initiative petitions above provided, any registered voter may give his signature therefor in the presence of the clerk of the city or town in which he is a registered voter, or of any assistant in his office, and the secretary of the commonwealth shall furnish to every city or town clerk an official blank for such signatures.

"Any such official signature card or unofficial paper or card when executed as herein provided may be delivered by mail or otherwise either to the secretary of the commonwealth or to the clerk of the city or town in which the signer of the same is a registered voter, and when so received shall be open for public inspection. If the name and residence signed to any such card or paper corresponds to the name and residence of a registered voter, and if such card or paper appears to be executed as herein required, the same shall be placed on file, otherwise it shall be rejected. If the officer with whom such card or paper is filed believes, from evidence offered to him, that there is substantial reason to doubt the genuineness of the signature to any such card or paper he may reject the same unless satisfactory evidence to establish such genuineness is furnished. The name of each signer of any such card or paper or blank shall be checked on the voting list so that the same voter shall not be counted more than once in support of any one petition.

"When the time for filing signatures as fixed herein shall expire each city or town clerk with whom any such official signature cards or any such unofficial papers or cards have been filed, or who has in his office any of the petition blanks furnished as aforesaid with signatures of voters thereon, shall transmit all of the same to the secretary of the commonwealth, who shall proceed to examine the same and count all signatures which appear to be in conformity herewith, and if the number of such signatures to any petition, together with the number of signatures thereto filed directly with the secretary of the commonwealth, equals the number of signatures required to complete such petition as herein provided, then such petition shall be transmitted to the general court or submitted to the people, as the case may be, as hereinafter provided.”;

By inserting in line 48, after the word “shall”, the words “give the petition a number and shall”;

“By striking out, in lines 60, 61 and 62, the words “If an initiative petition, signed by the required number of qualified voters, has been filed as aforesaid”, and inserting in place thereof the words “If the required number of signatures to an initiative petition has been filed with the secretary of the commonwealth as herein provided”;

By striking out lines 152 to 158, inclusive, and inserting in place thereof the words “is completed by filing after the first Wednesday in June aforesaid, and before the first Wednesday of the following August, not less than five thousand signatures of qualified voters, in addition to those filed before the introduction of such initiative petition, which signatures must have been obtained after the first Wednesday of June aforesaid, then”;

By striking out lines 184 to 190, inclusive, and inserting in place thereof the words “by filing after the first Wednesday in June aforesaid, and before the first Wednesday of the following August, not less than five thousand signatures of qualified voters, in addition to those filed before the introduction of such initiative petition, which signatures must have been obtained after the first Wednesday of June aforesaid, then the”.

Mr. Churchill of Amherst asked unanimous consent to move to amend the amendments by striking out the words “paper or” and “or paper”, wherever they occur. Objection was made.

Mr. Richardson of Newton moved that the amendment be divided so that the third paragraph of the first amendment might be put separately; and this motion was negatived, by a vote of 66 to 103.

Mr. Quincy then asked unanimous consent to move to amend the amendment by striking out the words “paper or” and “or paper”, wherever they occur. Objection was made.

The question was then put on the adoption of the amendments, and 80 members voted in the affirmative and 118 in the negative.

The sense of the Convention was then taken by yeas and nays, at the request of Mr. Hale of Boston; and on the roll call 76 members voted in the affirmative and 196 in the negative, as follows: —

Mr. Hale of Boston then moved that the Convention continue in session until the remaining substitutes for the resolution recommended by the committee on Form and Phraseology, and said resolution, are voted on, and then take a recess, pending the report of said committee, until half-past three o'clock; and this motion, after debate, was adopted, by a vote of 176 to 20. Proposed recess.

The question then came on the following pending amendment, moved by Mr. Brown of Brockton: That the resolution recommended as a substitute by the committee on Form and Phraseology be amended by the substitution of the following: "Reso- Mr. Brown,—

Such statute shall also make provision as to the number of signatures required, the form and conditions under which they shall be obtained and presented for a demand for legislative action upon any proposal thus submitted; and provision by law shall also be made whereby legislative acts may be submitted for review by the people by direct action at the polls exercising their powers herein and otherwise reserved."

 amendment.

The following pending amendment, moved by Mr. Morrill of Haverhill, was rejected, by a vote of 17 to 95: That the resolution recommended as a substitute by the committee on Form and Phraseology be amended by the substitution of a Resolution to provide for establishing the initiative and referendum (Doc. No. 352).

The pending amendment, recommended by the committee on Form and Phraseology, — that the resolution be amended by the substitution of a Resolution to provide for establishing the popular initiative and referendum, and of legislative initiative of specific amendments of the Constitution (printed in Doc. No. 370, changed) was adopted, as amended; and, under Rule 28, it was referred to the committee on Form and Phraseology.

At twenty-four minutes after one o'clock, in accordance with the vote previously adopted, the President declared a recess until half-past three o'clock; at which hour the Convention reassembled. Recess.

Mr. Loring of Beverly, for the committee on Form and Phraseology, reported that, with the following changes, the resolution would be correctly drawn: — Committee on Form and Phraseology, — report.

Striking out in the title, before the word "Legislative", the word "of", and inserting in place thereof the word "the";

Transposing the paragraphs inserted by amendment after line 30, so that they will appear after line 27;

Striking out, in lines 77, 200 and 211, the word "resolve", and inserting in place thereof, in each instance, the word "resolution";

Inserting in line 130, after the word "amendment", the words "or a legislative substitute";

Inserting in line 138, after the word "or", the words "if approved,";

Striking out, in line 139, the words "if approved";

Inserting in line 196, after the word "provisions", the words "contained in the measure";

Striking out, in line 206, the word "provided", and inserting in place thereof the word "provided";

Striking out the comma after the word "courts", in line 254, and after the word "commonwealth", in line 257, and inserting in place thereof, in each instance, a semicolon.

Inserting in line 359, before the word "to", the words ", except as otherwise authorized herein,"; and Striking out, in lines 360 and 366, as amended, the words "Except as otherwise herein provided,".

Mr. McCormack of Boston, of the same committee, submitted an additional report, and recommended a further amendment of the resolution (see Doc. No. 373) which he asked unanimous consent to move. Objection was made.

The question then came on passing the resolution, as amended, to be engrossed, and 128 members voted in the affirmative and 112 in the negative.

The sense of the Convention was then taken by yeas and nays, at the request of Mr. Walsh of Fitchburg; and on the roll call 163 members voted in the affirmative and 125 in the negative, as follows: —

Therefore the resolution, as amended (Doc. No. 373), was passed to be engrossed.

Mr. Walker of Brookline moved that the Orders of the Day be laid on the table; and this motion prevailed.

Manner of placing the resolution on the ballot.

Mr. Walker then moved that the committee on Rules and Procedure and the committee on Amendment and Codification of the Constitution, sitting jointly, be requested to report, as soon as possible, an order directing the manner in which the proposal for establishing the initiative and referendum shall be submitted to the people for their ratification and adoption at the state election in the year 1918; and this motion prevailed.

On further motion of Mr. Walker the Orders of the Day were taken from the table.

Filling of vacancies in the membership of the Convention.

The report of the committees on Elections and Rules and Procedure, sitting jointly, who were requested (by an order offered by Mr. Harriman of New Bedford and adopted on November 1) to consider the advisability of making provision for the filling of vacancies in the membership of the Convention, — that it is inadvisable at the present time for the Convention to take action in this matter, — was considered.

Mr. Dean of Fall River moved that the report be amended by the substitution of the following order: —

Ordered, That vacancies in the Convention, caused by the resignation or death of any of its members, shall be filled as follows: —

(a) If such vacancy shall be of a member elected at large, the remaining members elected at large shall select a person to fill such vacancy.

(b) If such vacancy shall be of a member elected from a congressional district, the remaining members from the congressional district shall select a person to fill such vacancy.

(c) If such vacancy shall be of a member elected from a legislative district, the remaining members elected from legislative districts in the same county shall select a person to fill such vacancy; provided, however, that the member chosen shall be resident of the legislative district in which the vacancy occurs. In filling such vacancies the counties of Dukes County, Nantucket and Barnstable shall be treated as one county.

The appointment to fill a vacancy shall be made by the members of the respective groups, or by a majority of them, and shall be in writing. Such written appointments shall become a part of the records of the Convention.

Mr. George of Haverhill moved that the further consideration of the report be postponed until the next session; and this motion prevailed.

The report of the committee on Rules and Procedure and the committee on Contingent Expenses and Pay-Roll, acting jointly, who were requested (by a motion of Mr. Sullivan of Salem, amended and adopted on November 14) to inquire into the matter of securing from the General Court of 1918 a sufficient appropriation to cover the deficits already accrued at this session, and the estimated expenses of the sessions of the Convention to be held in 1918, — that it is inadvisable at the present time for the Convention to take action in this matter, — was considered; and after debate the report was accepted.

No. 373), as passed to be submitted to the people. Initiative and referendum, — printing in final form.

On motion of the same member the provisions of the order adopted on June 21, providing that all motions for printing shall

The Convention then proceeded to the consideration of the Orders of the Day.

The President stated that, under the vote of the Convention on October 23, providing that until adjournment the Resolution to provide for establishing the initiative and referendum shall, whenever upon the Calendar, take precedence over all other matters in the Orders of the Day, he would forthwith lay before the Convention the engrossed Resolution to provide for establishing the popular initiative and referendum, and the legislative initiative of specific amendments of the Constitution (see Doc. No. 373).

Initiative and referendum, — submission to the people.

The Convention then voted to submit the resolution to the people.

The report of the committees on Elections and Rules and Procedure, sitting jointly, who were requested (by an order offered by Mr. Harriman of New Bedford and adopted on November 1) to consider the advisability of making provision for the filling of vacancies in the membership of the Convention, — that it is inadvisable at the present time for the Convention to take action in this matter, — was considered.

Membership of the Convention, — filling of vacancies.

The question first came on the following pending amendment, moved by Mr. Dean of Fall River: That the report be amended by the substitution of the following order: —

Mr. Dean, — amendment.

JOURNAL OF THE CONVENTION,

Ordered, That vacancies in the Convention, caused by the resignation or death of any of its members, shall be filled as follows:—

(a) If such vacancy shall be of a member elected at large, the remaining members elected at large shall select a person to fill such vacancy.

(b) If such vacancy shall be of a member elected from a congressional district, the remaining members from the congressional district shall select a person to fill such vacancy.

(c) If such vacancy shall be of a member elected from a legislative district, the remaining members elected from legislative districts in the same county shall select a person to fill such vacancy; provided, however, that the member chosen shall be resident of the legislative district in which the vacancy occurs. In filling such vacancies the counties of Dukes County, Nantucket and Barnstable shall be treated as one county.

The appointment to fill a vacancy shall be made by the members of the respective groups, or by a majority of them, and shall be in writing. Such written appointments shall become a part of the records of the Convention.

After debate Mr. Underhill of Somerville moved the previous question; and this motion, after further debate, was adopted.

The amendment moved by Mr. Dean was then rejected; and the report was accepted.

Previous question.

Compensation of porters, watchmen and scrubwomen.

The order providing that the sum of fifty dollars be paid to each porter that the Sergeant-at-Arms shall certify has been in attendance in and about the chamber, rooms and corridors occupied by the members of the Convention and in the employ of the Commonwealth, as extra compensation for additional work performed, was then considered.

The pending amendment, moved by Mr. Twomey of Lawrence (that the pending amendment moved by Mr. Underhill of Somerville be amended by adding after the word "watchman" the words "and each scrubwoman") was adopted, by a vote of 98 to 59.

The pending amendment, moved by Mr. Underhill of Somerville (that the order be amended by adding after the word "porter" the words "and each watchman") was adopted, as amended.

The order, as amended, was then adopted as follows:—

Ordered, That the sum of fifty dollars be paid to each porter and each watchman and each scrubwoman that the Sergeant-at-Arms shall certify has been in attendance in and about the chamber, rooms and corridors occupied by the members of the Convention and in the employ of the Commonwealth, as extra compensation for additional work performed.

Matron of the State House,—compensation.

The report of the committee on Contingent Expenses and Pay-Roll, who were instructed (by an order offered by Mr. George of Haverhill and adopted on November 7) to consider the expediency of providing compensation for the matron of the State House,—that no action is necessary at this time,—was considered.

Mr. George of Haverhill moved that the report be amended by striking out the words "no action is necessary at this time", and inserting in place thereof the words "the matron of the State House be allowed one hundred dollars for extra services on account of the present session of the Convention". Mr. George, — amendment.

After debate the amendment was rejected, by a vote of 51 to 81.

Mr. Mahoney of Boston then moved that the report be amended by striking out the words "no action is necessary at this time", and inserting in place thereof the words "the matron of the State House be allowed fifty dollars for extra services on account of the present session of the Convention". Mr. Mahoney, — amendment.

After debate this amendment was adopted, by a vote of 99 to 19; and the report, as amended, was accepted.

Compensation of Porters, Watchmen and Scrubwomen.

Mr. Wonson of Gloucester moved that the vote be reconsidered by which the Convention adopted the following order: — Compensation of porters, watchmen and scrubwomen.

Ordered, That the sum of fifty dollars be paid to each porter and each watchman and each scrubwoman that the Sergeant-at-Arms shall certify has been in attendance in and about the chamber, rooms and corridors occupied by the members of the Convention and in the employ of the Commonwealth, as extra compensation for additional work performed.

The same member moved that Rule 48 be suspended, in order that the motion to reconsider might be considered forthwith; and this motion was negatived.

Accordingly, under the rule, the motion to reconsider was placed first in the Orders of the Day for the next session.

Second Legislative Session.

Mr. Lomasney of Boston moved that the Convention adjourn, to reassemble immediately for another legislative session; and this motion was adopted, by a vote of 124 to 45. Second Legislative Session.

Accordingly, at nine minutes after one o'clock, the Convention adjourned, to meet again immediately.

SECOND SESSION.

Met according to adjournment.

Proposed Adjournment.

Mr. Parkman of Boston moved that the Convention adjourn, subject to the call of the President, as provided in the order adopted on October 23; and this motion was negatived, by a vote of 88 to 114. Motion to adjourn.
